Two Ways Loom to Raise New Billions

INCOME TAX BOOST, SALES LEVY FAVORED

Treasury Reported Backing Higher Assessment on Individuals.

NEED $12,000,000,000

Experts Put Little Emphasis on Retail Collection, But Congress Might Like It.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The preliminary search for new billions of war-financing revenue appeared narrowing today to two major potentialities—increases in individual and corporate income taxes, or a federal retail sales tax.

Capitol Hill heard informal reports that treasury and congressional tax experts in joint conferences were leaning heavily toward income tax increases, possibly with an excess profits levy against individuals with swollen wartime incomes, and were putting little if any emphasis on a retail sales levy.

At the same time there were increasing signs that a bloc might form within congress favoring a sales tax up to 10 per cent to avoid further drastic direct deductions from income.

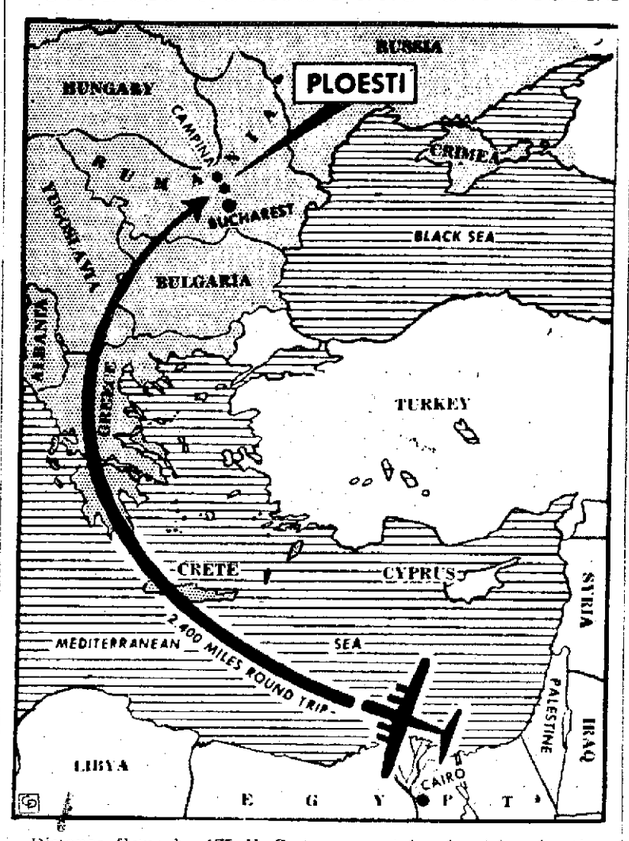
Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the house ways and means committee declared he would battle for protection of millions of persons in the "fixed-income" class—those whose earnings have been jacked up but little if at all by the booming wartime economy.

Doughton conferred with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and issued a statement saying that recognition must be given "that in any income group there may be people who need to be protected against the full impact of tax increases."

Morgenthau has suggested that $12,000,000,000 is needed next year in addition to the $88,000,000 000 now in sight.

Doughton told newspapermen that any new taxes "must be within the limitations of the taxpayers to pay," adding that the new tax program should be drawn with two objectives in view—control of inflation as well as additional revenue.

Bombers Pound Axis Oil Fields



Distance flown by 175 U. S. Liberator bombers that attacked the vital Axis oil fields around Ploesti, Rumania, is shown by this map. Great fires were set by the delayed-action bombs dropped by the planes and it was expected the attack would reduce materially the supplies of gasoline and oil for the Nazis.

RICHLAND DADS TO HEAR ARMY CALL BY OCT. 1

One Board Announces It'll Have To Dip Deeply Into Father Class.

GET ORDERS TODAY

Senator Blasts at Playing 'Power Politics With Lives of American Troops.'

Induction of Richland county fathers into the armed forces by Oct. 1 was seen today as the three selective service boards received orders to reclassify all available men between the ages of 18 and 38 regardless of family status.

It appeared that at least part of the October call for men would come from this group. One local board said that its supply of available men would be exhausted by September and that it would have to dip deeply into the "dad class" in October.

The other two boards said they had received the reclassification order but declined to make any comment.

State Selective Service Director Col. C. W. Goble said it is not desirable to reclassify such registrants out of 111-A any faster than they are needed, but in order to have the required number available for induction by Oct. 1, local boards should start reclassifying immediately.

He added that local boards should continue to select registrants in the following order: men with no dependents; men with collateral dependents, men who have wives with whom they maintain a bona fide family relationship in their homes, provided such status was acquired prior to Dec. 8, 1941; men placed in 1-A or 1-AO because they left an agricultural occupation or endeavor, or because they were engaged in a non deferrable activity or occupation; married men with minor children with whom they maintain a bona fide family relationship in their homes, provided such status was acquired prior to Dec. 8, 1941.

"In making such selections from the above groups, local

'Memphis Belle' Hits Storm

"Memphis Belle" romance appears ended with the announcement by Margaret Polk in Memphis, Tenn., that she will not marry Maj. Robert K. Morgan, pilot of the famous Flying Fortress, "Memphis Belle." The couple's romance received wide publicity when the bomber, named after Miss Polk, returned to the U. S. from foreign service. They are pictured together as they appeared when Major Morgan reached Memphis after his return.

Allies Throw 'Everything' At Axis Front

Bombers, Ships, Artillery Hurl Huge Concentration of Firepower In Support of Ground Troops as They Hit Sicilian Corner.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—The Mt. Etna line trembled under one of the greatest concentrations of fire in the war today as huge formations of Allied bombers and fighter-bombers joined with British and American warships and hundreds of batteries of field artillery in hammering the Axis' fixed defenses.

The full fury of the tremendous air, sea and land bombardment was unleashed in support of the big push of the land troops which Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters communique announced, marked up an advance of six miles in the Americans', northern sector and a gain of "several miles" in the central zone flanking Mt. Etna.

Not only bombers but several types of fighters and fighter-bombers ranged unopposed over the German and Italian ground forces, dropping high explosives at point blank range and ripping Axis infantry with cannon shells and machine-gun bullets.

A frontline witness said "the roar in the sky is deafening. It's a regular traffic jam up there."

Adrano, at the western base of Mt. Etna, and the gun positions and roads in that area were the focal point of the aerial-wrought destruction, and 80 enemy trucks were reported destroyed and 100 damaged.

RAF Wellingtons attacked Naples, swamping the defenses with a concentrated bombing.

Rested veterans of the Allied victory in Tunisia took over from some of the weary advance guard in Sicily to give punch to the final Allied offensive.

The presence of heavy American cruisers in Sicilian waters was disclosed for the first time in an announcement which said they were pumping heavy shells into Axis defenses built into the high ground west of Cape Orlando, about 43 miles west of Messina.

The cape is on the extreme left flank of the American Seventh army.

The shattering bombardment, coupled with a blanket of fire from American field artillery, was preceding the doughboys' advance through broken mountainous country.

At the same time the communique from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced very satisfactory progress was being made by Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army on the southern flank toward Catania.

Catenanuova, about three miles southwest of fallen Centuripe and directly west of Catania, was captured, and the taking of Agira, previously reported, also was confirmed.

"Our positions in the center were strengthened and heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy," the communique continued.

Hitler's Health Bad?

LONDON — (AP) — A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm quoted the unconfirmed report of the Bern correspondent of Nya Dagligt Allehanda today that Adolf Hitler's health is giving cause for anxiety in Germany. The correspondent wrote that Heinrich Himmler, head of all German police organizations, had asked Hitler's physicians to give a true report, which was "very bad."

The correspondent added that "in Germany discussions about an eventual successor already have begun."

Advances of up to six miles were marked up by the Americans in the north and Caronia, about four miles east of San Stefano and 18 miles west of Cape Orlando, was captured, the communique said.

An Allied air communique reported heavy attacks against Adrano at the western base of Mt. Etna, and gun positions in that

HARLEM CLAMPS ARE LOOSENED

Curfew Moved Back, Guardsmen Return to Homes.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Most of the restrictions clamped on Harlem during violent rioting and looting Sunday night were relaxed or withdrawn today following a second night of normal calm.

The 10:30 curfew was moved back to 11:30 last night. The 8,000 National Guardsmen mobilized by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey mostly had returned to their homes. The ban on vehicular traffic was expected to be lifted today.

Final statistics on the casualties in the Sunday night-Monday morning disorders showed five Negroes had been shot to death, 201 civilians injured, 60 police injured and 504 persons arrested.

PAY PLAN UP

Council To Meet Tuesday For Wage Increase Study.

Fate of the city employes' request for a $35 monthly pay raise probably will be decided at a council committee session next Tuesday night, although council may not have a definite answer for city workers then

Following last night's regular council session, Councilman C. N. Shultz, chairman of the salary committee, arranged the Tuesday night meeting to consider the salary increase request. He told council that he had "some information that will help us reach a decision" and would offer it then.

Council will act as a unit committee in determining action on the pay boost request. All but one or two of the nine members said they could attend the meeting next Tuesday.

Any decision that council might reach then will have to be incorporated in legislation for final action at a later meeting. There was no discussion of the salary issue at last night's meeting.

NAME 3 TO GET AIRPORT LAND

Council Selects Mayor, Service Director and Engineer To Acquire 1,000-Acre Tract.

Three city officials—the mayor, service-safety director, and city engineer—had been empowered today by council to make the first move toward acquiring the 1,000 acres of land Mansfield will need for the airport expansion program for which the federal government recently granted $600,000.

Council last night authorized the trio of officials to spend $500 for surveying and appraising the land and starting negotiations with the owners for the necessary property north and west of the present airport.

Mayor W. J. Locke said today the city would attempt to employ a right-of-way man who can accurately appraise the land and confer with the owners concerning the purchase.

The mayor said he had talked with most of the 19 land owners who will be involved in the city deal and believed that it would not be necessary to go to court

SUBURB SEEKS A PIED PIPER

Rocky River Residents Are Plagued by Rats.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Suburban Rocky River councilmen today were seeking a modern day Pied Piper to rid the homes of residents of rats.

Citizens petitioned councilmen to aid in exterminating the rats which are plaguing homes in the western section of the suburb.

Councilmen were told that the city dump was providing a breeding spot for the vermin.

CAUGHT BY FBI

Impersonator Taught Men To Evade Draft, Says Hoover.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover today announced the arrest in New York city of Stephen Weinberg, 50, described as a notorious impersonator and deceptionist, on a charge of violating the selective service act.

In a complaint filed today, Hoover charged that Weinberg, operating in a suite of offices in a fashionable New York hotel, had been teaching New York men ways of evading the draft.

"In several instances," Hoover said, "he so thoroughly schooled draft dodgers in mannerisms and reactions of mentally incompetent persons that they were rejected as being unfit."

GOERING LEADER KILLED

LONDON — (INS) — The commander of the Nazi Herman Goering division in Sicily, Colonel Karnap, was killed in action Sunday night, the Algiers radio reported today, Exchange Telegraph said.

FOOD PRICES TAKE EFFECT

Community Flat Rates Begin Tomorrow In Richland, 18 Other Counties.

Community flat prices will be put into effect tomorrow by retail food dealers in the Cleveland district area which includes Richland and 18 other northeastern Ohio counties.

Selling prices of the brands listed under the Community prices which are sold in the store must be posted in the store by the dealer. Prices of food products which are not specifically listed in the community price list are still controlled by whatever maximum price regulations has previously been applied, OPA officials said.

Final instructions on the community prices were given to the dealers Monday night in a meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. E. J. Champion from the Office of Price Administration in Cleveland was present for the meeting to discuss prices with the dealers.

Canenr goods effected by the community price plan include green and waxed beans, corn, peaches, pears, peas, pineapple,

Rains Cause New Threat to Grain Crops In County

Heavy rains yesterday and this morning further delayed the harvesting of Richland county's wheat and oats crops and threatened greater damage to grain which was hard hit by the frequent spring rains and heavy storms this summer. County Agent George B. Ganyard said.

The county's threshing, usually nearly completed by Aug. 1, is little more than half done and today's soaking rain will keep farmers out of the fields for at least two days, it was said.

Oats will be damaged most by the rain, since much of the county's crop is full of weeds and grain stalks have been broken down by wind storms, the county

OPENS INQUIRY

Prosecutor Begins Probe of Crash That Killed 3.

Acting Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell announced today that he had begun an investigation into the fatal accident on Park avenue west last Friday night which claimed the lives of three Ontario residents.

After studying the report of State Patrolman Harry Hurst and viewing the scene of the accident yesterday, O'Donnell said he failed to find "sufficient evidence to file manslaughter charges." He stated the investigation would be continued, however.

Fatally injured in the accident were Miss Elsie Milliron, 18, Orlo Rush, 61, and Mrs. Lottie Rush, 61. The cars met in a head-on collision three miles west of Mansfield on state route 30-S. Arthur Milliron, father of the Milliron girl, and Richard Logan, occupant of the Rush car, were also injured in the accident.

Sergeant Defies Sniper to Obtain Basket of Eggs

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—(U.P.)—It took him three quarters of an hour, but Sgt. Edmund Bastien of Brooklyn finally got the six dozen eggs.

They were reposing in a basket in no man's land on an embattled hilltop of Nicosia in Sicily when he first saw them. Hungry, he wormed his way out behind cover to within an arm's length of them.

When he reached for the eggs, however, a sniper's bullet zoomed past his hand. He spent the next 45 minutes trying to outguess the sniper and finally caught him napping.

Returning with the eggs, he told fellow-members of Company H: "They almost cost too much!"

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—City Manager C. O. Sherrill disclosed today that a postwar public works projects for improvements to General hospital at a cost of $3,087,000 is under consideration.

Sherill has asked city council for authorization to hire architects and consulting engineers to begin preliminary studies of the project.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The German radio in a broadcast today declared 199 Allied planes had been shot down in the Mediterranean theater from the beginning of the Sicilian invasion to July 31, and that 309 Allied tanks had been destroyed.

BARES CLAIMS

Soong Says China Expects Manchuria, Formosa.

LONDON—(AP)—T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister who is visiting England, told a press conference today that China expected Manchuria and Formosa to be returned to her after the war but that she had no territorial ambitions in Indo-China or Thailand.

He said the Chinese hoped Korea would become an independent nation.

BERLIN BEING EVACUATED

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — Berlin correspondent of Swedish newspapers reported the Germans were speeding evacuation of all non-essential civilians from Berlin in anticipation that the capital would follow Hamburg on the Allied blitz list.

Police Reconstruct Kidnaping Of Tiny 2-Day-Old Blond Baby

(By United Press)

ALBANY, Ore. — State police worked on the theory today that someone inside the Albany General hospital, moving cautiously before dawn, opened a fire-escape entrance through which the kidnaper of two-day-old Judith Gurney entered the hospital nursery.

The blond, blue-eyed baby was stolen from her crib before dawn yesterday, and detectives who searched the hospital for clues believed her abduction was pre-arranged in minute detail.

Authorities believed the abductor probably a woman, perhaps one who could not have children of her own. Railroads throughout the vicinity were asked to be on the alert for a girl traveling with a new-born baby.

State police believed the kidnaper climbed a fire escape outside the hospital, entered a sun porch through a screen window, and stole into the adjoining nursery. The sun porch window, which opened from the inside, was found open, strengthening the belief that someone inside the hospital aided in the kidnaping.

Detectives said the downstairs entrance of the hospital, always locked at night, had been unlocked. They believed the abductor took the tiny girl from her crib, placed a rolled blanket in her place to simulate the form of a sleeping child, and walked through the hospital and down the stairs, leaving by way of the unlocked front entrance.

County's Surprise Raid Alert Called Success by OCD

Although Richland county's second surprise daylight air raid alert late yesterday was reported successful, city civilian defense officials today had asked state OCD headquarters to change the time of the next surprise alert so as to provide a better mobilization test for civilian defense units.

The first siren was sounded at 7:18 p. m. yesterday, almost the same time that the first surprise alert was staged about a month ago.

Both tests have come at a time when most of the wardens and other OCD workers were away from their jobs and at home waiting for the word to report for duty, said Common Pleas Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, OCD coordinator. He said he

BAKERIES HIT

Youngstown Units Say They Face Brief Closing.

YOUNGSTOWN — (U.P.) — Several bakeries in the Youngstown area have closed from one to two weeks because of a sugar shortage and others reported today they would be forced to close for a short period shortly because heavy trade had forced them to use their entire quota.

Bakeries dealing in bread have not been affected.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (INS) —The War Labor Board today assumed jurisdiction in the dispute between the American Federation of Musicians, headed by James C. Petrillo, and seven electrical transcription manufacturing companies and appointed a three-man panel to hold hearings in the case.

At the same time, the board denied a request of the companies that the AFM be ordered to "terminate its strike" pending final determination of the case.

TOTTERS: Orel Near Fall as Nazis Retreat, Reds Close In

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—The fall of the German stronghold of Orel appeared inevitable today as a smashing Red army offensive carried to within five miles of the city.

The German retreat westward from points north and south of Orel proceeded steadily and it seemed only a question of time before Orel itself would be abandoned, eliminating the entire enemy salient on the central front.

(The British radio, quoting a Reuters dispatch from Moscow, declared the Germans' escape corridor west of Orel had been narrowed to 13 miles, threatening the Nazis with another disaster perhaps equal to that suffered at Stalingrad.

(The broadcast, recorded by CBS, said that the Germans "are in full and hasty retreat toward Orel, with the three main Russian armies driving forward after them."

(The German high command communique dismissed the Orel fighting with the assertion that violent Russian tank attacks southwest of that city had been "repulsed everywhere," but told of heavy fighting on the Mius river front on the southern end of the line near Kuibyshevo.

(German infantry, tanks and the Waffen Elite guard under command of Field Marshal Gen. Fritz Erich von Mannstein were reported to have thrown back repeated Soviet attacks in the Mius sector, capturing 17,895 prisoners up to Aug. 2 and destroying 730 tanks.)

STIFFEN: Japs Fight Harder As Yanks Near Munda Air Strip

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—United States infantrymen have hacked their way out of the jungle through nests of fierce-fighting Japanese to the eastern edge of the Munda air strip but the main enemy defense line and much bloody battling still lie ahead. The air strip runs east and west.

A spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in announcing today the slowly continuing envelopment of that key enemy base on New Georgia island in the central Solomons, emphasized that the Japanese resistance was stiffening rather than crumbling despite the poundings the defenders have taken from the air, sea and land for more than a month.

The Japanese are dug in, manning machine guns in coral caves and log bunkers, from Kekele village on the waterfront to the foot of Bibolo hill, in that sector where the Americans stand nearest their objective, after advances along the coast.

The whole jungle battle line continues to inch ahead.

The big news from the western hinge of the Pacific offensive, where Australian and American jungle fighters are within artillery shelling distance of Salamaua, New Guinea,

WATCH THE OPPONENTS

Many declarers pay hardly any attention to what the defenders are doing, as they go merrily on their way playing their own cards Especially disdainful are they of watching the size of the small cards which have no influence upon the taking of the particular tricks on which they are played Such cards, however, often furnish the key to playing later tricks They constitute the signals from one defender to the other, and the wise declarer will listen in to obtain messages which he also can use.

East and West put up a much better job on this deal than did the declarer, beginning with a damaging lead the spade 10 West took it with the K, returned the 2 and the 9 and A scored just as they would against a No Trump contract East returned the club 3 to the J and A and North sent the diamond K to the A A second club, the 9, fell to the 10 and the diamond Q was scored the 4 then being led and ruffed by the club 5

The heart A was taken and the 9 led to the 10, West then returning the heart 5 Hoping for three tricks now with his own two trumps and the K in dummy, North ruffed with the club 6 and East over-ruffed with the 9 East's last trump then made North use both his own Q and dummy's K on one trick so that he had to give up a heart on the final trick, being down three for the worst score in the duplicate where this hand was dealt.

If North had noticed East's play on the heart A and 9 he would have taken one more trick It was the 6 on the first of these, and the 3 on the next—a high-low, indicating that he had no more North, if he noticed that, should have ruffed the next trick, the heart 5, with his club Q, to prevent East from over-ruffing He then could have led a diamond to be ruffed by the club K, and so would have taken two tricks instead of one with those honors, giving up the final trick for down two instead of three

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"Coming, Madam, right away!" I told Ruth Hayes and went over to her as she stood in the doorway of 1720 As I went, I blessed the foresight of my little mother, who had so imbued me, by drill and example, with the necessity of keeping my head in an emergency, that I was able to focus all my faculties on playing my part so that Ruth should not suspect my identity.

"Save your tears and flutters until the breath's out of the body," my mother used to say sternly. "And if you must cry sometimes, do it because of something trivial, or when there's nothing important to be affected by your weakness And keep your head always Don't get frightened."

Ruth Hayes was tapping her foot impatiently as I came up to her.

"What's the matter with you?" she demanded irritably. "You're terribly slow!"

"I'm just back from being sick, Madam" I said haltingly. "I came as fast as I could"

There was cruelty in the eyes that bored through me

"There's always something the matter with you maids," she said coldly "I don't know how you get away with it. I can't. But I haven't time to talk about it. Come into my room I want to talk to you"

I knew that my role called for a touch of sullen resentment, but not too open

"I can't come now if it's going to take long, Madam," I told her. "I've got three rooms to do for my regulars before noon I never know when they may be back"

I was improvising rapidly, for I distinctly did not wish to go into the room of the "Wilderness Woman," although common sense told me that she would not do me any harm unless she should happen to discover my identity.

"Your rooms won't be delayed," she said loftily. "You can just work a little faster than your usual gait. And I won't keep you long, if you don't waste my time talking about it. Now get in here."

"Maid!" bellowed Dicky from behind the door of 1718.

"Oh, you'll have to wait a minute, Madam," I said flutteringly. "That's the poor sick man in 1718, next to you He's leaving his door ajar so he can call me without having to leave his chair He probably won't want anything much, I'll be right back"

"Here! Come back here!" she ordered, but I hurried into 1718, and received a raucous query and command from Dicky.

"Who's that making that row in the hall?" he demanded "And shut that door now that you've heard me and are in here"

I obeyed, knowing that Ruth Hayes would not wish to attract attention to herself by following me and disputing his right to attendance The next second I was close to him, telling him of my conversation with the telephone girl He nodded attentively, but stopped me when I began to tell of the "Wilderness Woman's" commands

"I heard every word of that," he said 'Now, there are two possible reasons for her wanting you in her room Number one, she wants to question you about that troublesome female, Mrs Graham, whom she will describe to you. Number two, she has recognized you."

"I don't think there's a chance in a million of the last,' I assured him "I watched her very closely from beneath my eyelashes—"

"That's one of your best tricks!" my husband commented teasingly, and beneath Halloran's clever make-up I flushed as I finished my sentence:

"And I'm sure she hasn't a suspicion that I'm anything but a slow, rather stupid maid"

"Let's hope she keeps on thinking so,' my husband said devoutly, and I silently echoed his prayer "Well, I suppose there's nothing for it but for you to go over there. But remember I'm keeping my door ajar, and I want you to edge over to the wall adjoining this, so that you can kick it with your heel or anything handy if she starts anything. By the way, have you got your little pistol with you?"

"Safe in my pocket," I answered.

WINS $100 PRIZE

TROY, N. Y. —(U.P.)— Talk is cheap, says the old adage. But Robert C. O'Neill, 18-year-old Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute freshman from Kenmore, N. Y., proves that it pays and well. Too O'Neill won first prize of $100 in the annual public speaking contest for freshmen at R. P. I. His talk of six minutes duration paid off at the rate of $16.66 per minute.

U. S. REQUESTS FISHERMEN NOT TO WASTE THEIR CATCHES

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—"Don't waste any of your catch—see that it is used for food by someone," the Fish and Wildlife service of the department of the interior today urged the nation's sports fishermen.

Surplus catches of saltwater sportsmen should be turned into the national larder to help increase food resources, declared Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, director of the service.

In line with the example set by hunters, who will have added an estimated 135 million pounds of meat to the nation's supply by the end of 1943 wartime anglers will land millions of pounds of edible fish, which should not be wasted as in past years because it cannot be consumed immediately, he pointed out.

Firms and individuals handling fish commercially are best fitted to salvage surpluses of so perishable a product, Dr. Gabrielson continued, but most catches of sportsmen will be in small quantities and a variety of species, some of which are not in public demand and could not be marketed easily.

Therefore the service suggests that sea-shore communities undertake the handling of these fish as a part of their war salvage program. Town docks or some public space where the community can provide ice and storage facilities will serve as a central receiving station, and sportsmens' clubs or civil agencies might serve as collecting agents and arrange for designated fish handlers to pick up the day's catch. Further surpluses which cannot be marketed readily should go into the channels of charity by donation, it was declared.

Though these surpluses will not be of sufficient volume to influence the markets which receive the products of the commercial fishing industry, they will have a bolstering effect on the food supply.

For example, the New York State Conservation department reported that in 1938 the estimated recreational catch of winter flounders in Long Island Sound was more than one million fish, with a minimum weight of a half-million pounds.

State records for Maryland maritime fishing grounds show that in pre-war days approximately 300,000 fishermen took an estimate of 10 pounds each. The shore from Miami, Fla., to Eastport, Maine, in the gulf, and along the Pacific are havens for sportsmen in peace time, and despite curtailed sport under present conditions, will yield a creditable volume of good food.

PROMOTED AGAIN

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. —(INS)— Joseph L. Lockard has been promoted from second to first lieutenant in the army. It was Lockard who, as a private, first detected the approach of Japanese planes at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. His warning to a superior officer went unheeded. He has been stationed in Alaska for more than six months.

MOTHERS BLAMED

ST. LOUIS —(INS)— Increasing juvenile delinquency in St. Louis can be blamed on working mothers who leave their children to roam the streets without supervision, Frank X. Reller, chief probation officer of the juvenile court said recently.

TELEPHONE 4251-6

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—(By Wireless)—As the new government of Italy failed to respond to the opportunity afforded by our lull in bombing to seek an armistice, we have no other course than to resume heavy air attack. There is a good chance that Italy will be the first case of a major nation forced to capitulate by airpower.

Clapper

The fact is that Italy is already defeated. She is now exposed to our air superiority. We gave advance warning of the first raid on Rome, with leaflets dropped beforehand, yet enormous formations of planes went over Rome in daylight with only token resistance. From Sicily we are now able to do an even more devastating job than from North African air bases. Some of the captured airfields in Sicily, such as Borizzo, Ponte Olivo, Castelvetrano, Comiso and Milo, have runways a mile long and can accommodate Flying Fortresses, thus bringing targets on the Italian mainland much closer. Our medium bombers especially are made more effective.

Our airpower has already done such damage that it seems to have driven the Italians into a state of resignation. Photographs taken 10 days after the big Naples raid of July 17 show a most astonishing lack of repairs. No attempt apparently has been made to repair the bomb damage. The railroad yards are on the direct route of freight bound to southern Italy, yet the tracks have not been put back into action. The photographs show smashed freight cars still lying crosswise of twisted tracks. No trains appear to be moving in the yards. No workmen are in sight. It looks as if the Italians had just given up trying to restore the railroad yards to working condition.

Having seen several ports after the North African air force had finished with them, I do not see how Italy can last under a real bombing attack. It would be a most salutary event if we did set about to knock Italy out from the air, and especially if we went ahead and did it while the ground armies were delayed in Sicily.

The effect on Germany would be shattering. Germany is feeling the Allied air attack more keenly every day. What has happened to Hamburg is bound to shake a good many Germans, coming in conjunction with all that is happening in Italy. If we smash Italy in to capitulation and then turn our whole combined airpower from England, North Africa and Sicily at Germany, using northern Italian fields, it is doubtful if Germany can last out the winter. For the first time I see the possibility of the war in Europe ending this year. If so, it will be such a triumph of the air as to make it inexcusable for the United Nations ever again to let any aggressor endanger its neighbors.

As for Italy, if they are stalling to get terms it is useless. As the United Nations told the Italians a few days ago, they can have honorable capitulation. Certainly there is no reason why we should make concessions. The defeat of Italy appears inevitable. Badoglio can only delay the capitulation a short time.

It is possible that our phrase "unconditional surrender" is causing some in Rome to balk at asking for an armistice. Therefore we have used the term "honorable capitulation." I am not sure there is much difference.

Whether the enemy surrenders or capitulates seems largely a matter of which word you prefer to cover the act of giving up the fight. The Badoglio government has the job of getting Italy out of the war. All information coming out of Italy indicates the people are impatient for the end of war, which impatience is likely to increase sharply from now on as Allied bombing makes life even harder than Mussolini made it.

FIRE VICTIM'S RECOVERY SEEN AS 'AMAZING'

Coast Guardsman Who Lost 65 Per Cent of Skin In Boston Blaze, Improves.

(By United Press)

BOSTON—One of medical history's most amazing fights for life was revealed today by physicians who for eight months have worked tirelessly at the bedside of a young coast guardsman burned almost beyond recognition in the Cocoanut Grove night club holocaust.

Third-degree burns covered 65 per cent of Clifford Johnson's body when the 21-year-old Sumner, Mo., sailor was dragged last Nov. 28 from the night club fire that cost 492 lives.

In a third degree burn the skin and possibly some of the tissue beneath has been destroyed. No other person in that fire who suffered more than 20 per cent burns survived.

Since that night Johnson, the only victim still hospitalized, has lain on his stomach. Three things apparently have kept him alive during those pain-wracked months—nutritional treatment, blood plasma and about $20,000 worth of the finest medical care obtainable.

Perhaps the first was the most important. Dr. Charles C. Lund of Brookline said that the nutritional treatment was a more important factor than sulfa drugs and the triple dye treatments.

From 168 pounds Johnson dropped to 112 as the protein in his body drained from a normal of 6.5 per cent to 3.2 per cent. To combat this he was intravenously fed 6500 calories daily as compared with the 3500 calories required each day by a laborer. His daily caloric intake equalled about three pounds of meat.

The navy and the coast guard gave nearly 100 transfusions from their blood banks into the youthful seaman's veins — perhaps more plasma than ever has been used by any one person in such a concentrated period.

The American Red Cross donated almost $5,000 for nursing care. Burn specialists throughout the United States visited him to study this very rare case in medical history. The National Research Council at Washington and the City hospital's Thorndike laboratory have gathered information from his case that may revolutionize burn treatment.

Skin grafts on Johnson's back are healing. He has passed through the most painful period and now wants to live. Doctors believe he will.

But these same physicians say it will be several months before he walks again and that by the time he is well his medical care will have cost more than $50,000.

OHIO BOWS ON U. S. PLAN FOR MATERNITY AID

Markwith Says State Accepts Program To Help Wives of Service Men.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Ending weeks of federal-state bickering, State Health Director R. H. Markwith announced today that Ohio would accept, with only minor changes, the same federal children's bureau childbirth program for the wives of men in the armed forces that has been accepted by 39 other states.

"Our hands are tied by the congressional act establishing the program," he said. "There's nothing else we can do and still participate in the federal aid plan."

The director delayed acceptance of the plan until the Ohio State Medical association and other agencies had attempted to draft a substitute, workable program which would overcome the objection of the association that the bureau plan threatened to "socialize" the practice of medicine.

Details of the plan which will be placed in effect in Ohio will be worked out in a series of conferences beginning tomorrow, when Dr. Edwin Daily of the children's bureau will come from Washington to confer with Markwith.

"Without doubt a plan will be worked out which will meet with the requirements of the children's bureau and also one in which the Ohio State Medical association will be willing to participate, even if a bit unwillingly," said the health director.

The federal plan calls for a maximum doctor's fee of $35, and has a ceiling of $200 for all prenatal and post-natal expenses. It would allow a maximum of $60 for hospital care, $25 for surgery, $70 for nurse's care if needed, and $10 for ambulance service. However the national average expenditure under the program is only about $80.

The medical association objected to the plan on the ground it would socialize medicine, inasmuch as a doctor would be paid direct by the federal government, and was limited to the fee he could charge even though relatives or other agencies were willing to make up any deficit not covered by the $35 maximum.

The association favored among other things direct grants to the expectant mothers, who then could use the funds as they saw fit.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Fascism, in Italy, was the reaction against the violence of communism which was beginning to reproduce the Russian revolution among a sick, poor and confused population whose government had lost authority and respect. It was not an unpopular reaction, for it offered attractive bribes to the people and promised to punish the rich and humiliate the high-born. It also promised to put down disorders which always terrify the majority of the citizens and the saying that Mussolini made the trains run on time was not as empty as it sounded; for it meant not merely that he put them on schedule and kept them there, but also that he imposed discipline on revolutionary railroad workers and made them behave.

Pegler

Mussolini did pay off many of his promises to the workers, but, in return, he seized absolute power over their lives. Business, although not seized outright, was so tightly regulated that it became a state enterprise and was fed upon by petty agents of the party and looted by the more pompous grafters and opportunists. Any worker who thought his employer has misused him could readily and easily go to court and get his rights, and it was pleasant in the early stages to be able to stand up in court and point a finger at the boss without fear.

Mussolini was especially crafty in his treatment of the journalists for although he could create a one-party press by force it was even better to create a loyal body of enthusiastic defenders whose devotion had been bought by a form of job-security that made it more expensive for an employer to fire an incompetent than to keep him on the pay roll for life. Anyway, the press was receiving government subsidies to cover any deficits that might result from the overload, so the employers, too, were reasonably happy.

On the whole, fascism was not unpopular with the Italians as a domestic government. But it began to hurt when the bum dressed up his empire and in the darkness before dawn the hobnails of young Italians, faceless in the gloom, clopped in broken steps over the cobblestones of the streets leading down to the transports for Abyssinia. This was war again and the Italians had not wanted real war but only parades and music. Mussolini also put through his program of public works and resettlement projects and paid baby-bonuses and altogether, there were elements in fascism which have been copied here and rapturously praised as social, political and economic gains. There, also, those who criticized the content and the objectives of the government's program put themselves in an exposed position, for there were many to say that Mussolini was a great and good man whose heart beat only for the people and that his opponents had no motive but greed and bitterness over the loss of their old privileges.

Governments all require force behind them which should be used impartially against all groups that challenge their authority. It may be the force in the policeman's night stick, implied but not exerted, or, in extreme cases, the force of arms under martial law.

In Italy, just before fascism, the force behind government had flinched, then failed utterly and the popular appeal of fascism lay in its promise of order and law and an era of employment and sufficiency, if not necessarily of plenty. It is always the method of the communists to take advantage of discontent arising from poverty and discouragements to arouse elements of the people to riots which may develop into insurrections, and it is always a mistake of any government, to condone or accept any excuses for any challenge to its authority. When such disturbances go just so far the government loses the initiative and the authority and may be unable to regain control.

Britain had some dangerous experiences after the other war, including a strike of policemen in Liverpool, a very tough city, and Britain came through, thanks to the character of the people and their civilization and respect for law. In other countries, though, communism faded into fascism as Herbert Hoover has repeatedly pointed out to the boos of a multitude of Americans who seem to think that law and order mean reaction and oppression of the many by the few.

TORN APART

Locomotives Crash Head-on, 3 Trainmen Killed.

ALBANY, Ind.—(AP)—Searchers today sought the bodies of three railroad men believed entombed in the tangled wreckage of two Nickel Plate freight trains that "tore each other apart" in a head-on crash at the eastern edge of Albany last night.

Ogden Pierce, Nickel Plate superintendent at Frankford, Ind., said the men unaccounted for in the wreck were: Ferman Barber and Robert Denny, both of Lima, Ohio, and Henry Eilerman, whose address was not learned.

Walter St. Clair of Indianapolis, who saw the collision said: "The two locomotives tore each other apart. A coal tender landed on top of its engine, locomotive wheels landed in a locomotive cab, and other large pieces of steel were scattered for great distances."

TAXI MEASURE GIVEN READING

Legislation Requiring Posting of Rates, Zones Comes Up Again In Council.

A proposal requiring the posting of rates and a map showing routes and zones for Mansfield taxis and buses in a conspicuous place in the vehicles was given its second reading last night by city council. An ordinance requires three readings to become law.

The measure is an attempt by council to clear up the confusion over the variance in taxi charges without actually setting the rates for the cab companies.

If the measure is passed by council, taxi firms will be required to show their fares in specific zones and to post the zone maps in each cab.

Council also set a 10-minute parking limit on West Fourth street and North Mulberry street at the front and side of the postoffice. Parking meters in front of the building will be removed.

Councilman Clifford G. Knarr, sponsor of the parking bill, said the Mansfield Retail Merchants association and Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals had recommended it to eliminate double parking in the postoffice area.

CITY SETTLES DAMAGE SUIT

Council Authorizes Payment of $500 To End Action Over Raleigh Avenue Damage.

City council last night agreed to a $500 settlement of a $1,500 damage action brought against the city by Mrs. Anna B. Zerby, a Raleigh avenue property owner, who charged that her lot was damaged when the city resurfaced the street past her property.

Council set up $500 to pay the claim and an additional $10 for court costs. The case was pending in common pleas court.

The plaintiff contended that a portion of her front yard was cut away when the street was graded and the garage was left four feet above the street level. She was represented by Atty. Marshall C. Moore who attended last night's council meeting to see if the settlement proposal received council approval.

At the same time council reduced the assessment against Mrs. Zerby for the street improvement from $498.45 to $250, acting on the recommendation of the council street and claims committee.

Two other street assessments which were termed excessive by the property owners were reduced by council action on the recommendation of the street and claims committee and City Engineer W. C. Statler.

The amount assessed against Mrs. Lila B. Schraedly, owner of an Arlington avenue lot, was reduced from $228 to $76, while the assessment against Mrs. Loraetta Kasner for the Raleigh avenue improvement was dropped from $747.68 to $374.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Duke Ellington, maestro-pianist-composer, currently active at Broadway's Paramount, believes there's no such thing as bad music—and here tells why.—D. K.)

Duke Ellington Says:

"WHAT do you think of so-and-so's band? Pretty terrible isn't he?" "No!" How can I say anything else? I don't think that so-and-so is bad. I don't think that anybody is. Especially in music. Most people, practically everybody, assumes that a bandleader is an absolute authority on everything in music. Well, I may be something of an authority. I've been a bandleader for quite some years. I've heard quite a few musicians. Musicians of all stripes and colors. Musicians of parts. Musicians of heart and soul and lungs. And in my experience, varied and harried as it has been, none of these fellows can be said to have stunk.

It's this way. There's all kinds of music. There's all kinds of musicians. Some are magnificent. Some are pretty bad. But the reasons they wander all the way from magnificent to bad are so complex, so difficult to put your finger on and name, that you cannot, at any time, point and say—"he's foul!" You see, you've got to consider tone and technical ability. You've got to allow for all kinds of tone. And there is just as wide a range of technique. Some men, like Harry James, can knock off any note, from the lowest to the screeching highest, or any sequence of notes, with the ease that you and I turn over from one side to another in bed.

Of course the best musicians, in and out of jazz, are those who make their personalities count. They tell a great story with their instruments. They have identifying sounds. You hear Johnny Hodges, of my band, or Count Basie, or Benny Goodman, or Tommy Dorsey, and you know it's Johnny or Count or Benny or Tommy. You can pick out some of the characteristics that make these men the great individualists of jazz. Tone. Technique. A way of phrasing. A means of cutting through to heart and soul. Of making the nuances count.

There's still another factor, and a really vital one, too. There are nights that make you weep, and there are nights that make you laugh and cry for joy. There are nights when you play gloriously, inspired from the inside out and the outside in. And there are those horrible evenings when everything goes wrong. If you're a trumpeter or a trombonist, you can't get your breath. If you're a pianist, as I am, your fingers stick together, fall all over each other.

And so with the big and the little men. One night, a little man plays with the gods, and becomes a big man. And one night, a big man plays with the Archangel Lucifer, plays like the very devil, and becomes a little man. Now, which one of these boys are you going to say stinks?

I really don't think there is a musician or a piece of music you could name which nobody liked. And since the primary purpose of music is to give pleasure of one kind or another, as long as it fulfills this function (and it always does, I think), it is good. Therefore, I say, there is no such thing as bad music.

"Don't you think so-and-so is terrible?" "Doesn't that such-and-such music bring you down?"

The answer is "No!"

Shelby football fans were stunned by Monday's announcement that Tommy Bender had resigned the Whippet grid coaching job just before the Aug. 1 deadline, to take a similar job at Fostoria.

Things moved so quickly for Tommy last week, that even Bender must have been a little bit stunned.

Ike Trubey, also rushing to beat that Aug. 1 deadline, quit at Fostoria to take the Elyria job, and a couple days later Bender was installed at Fostoria.

I doubt if Tommy had any intention of leaving Shelby before the Fostoria job opened up.

It's no secret that the Whippets, like their North Central Ohio league neighbors at Galion and Marion, have been working out regularly in preparation for the coming gridiron campaign.

Of course Bender, officially, had nothing to do with the football activities of the Shelby boys, but it was reported he was very well pleased by the fact that they were getting in shape.

Bender was very much disappointed a year ago when he came to Shelby from Logan, and found the squad of small boys awaiting him. During his years of playing at Ashland college and coaching at Mt. Gilead, Bender knew Shelby as a football town, where the fighting spirit of its gridiron teams and loyal support of the fans, were legend.

Tommy spent a year of building, and had a squad of boys returning as veteran material who promised to show results of the building program. Prospects were bright for the Whippets this fall.

Now the Shelby fans are worried about the chances of hiring a new coach. Few coaches are available these days, and there are a number of coaching vacancies in schools throughout the state. An unemployed coach can just about pick his own spot.

Shelby may find it necessary to unload the whole coaching job on Larry Swackhamer, cage mentor. The fine staff of assistant coaches which Bender had last year, is shot.

Raymond Hatch is in the army, and Arlo (Pete) Willet has been promoted to principal of Central school in Shelby.

A year ago Al Fendrick, then coaching Madison, turned down the Shelby job, because the move would not have given him a salary increase. Although the job is reported to pay better now, Fendrick says he still isn't interested.

Judging from the ribbing I've been getting at the Westinghouse our loss of a game to the kids has awakened more interest in softball than fifty wins would have done. Thought you might like to know we play the kids again Thursday at Prospect park at 6:30 p. m., hope you can be there.

We are entered in the district tournament at Oberlin which opens Aug. 9 As soon as that is over we want to play the toughest teams we can get hold of. Tell Bill McKee we will play the Garretson Lumbers of Ashland again any time, any place.

Seahawk Schedule Includes Bucks

IOWA CITY, Ia. — (U.P.) — The 1934 schedule of the Iowa Seahaws, one of last season's most powerful football teams, probably will be able to carry out its scheduled game with Ohio State university, Sept. 25.

Lt. Cmdr. Harvey Harman, athletic director of the Iowa Navy Preflight school, said he had received no official notification of new navy rules restricting travel of navy teams, but added, "It would appear that the Seahawk football schedule would be unaffected."

Under the order, navy teams are permitted to play only those opponents within the same district of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

Flatbush Follies Crack Up

Laughing Larry McPhail Gets Plenty of Chuckles.

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THERE'S no doubt Lieut. Col. Larry MacPhail is a busy man these days down there in the War Department, but he must take time out every once in a while to have a chuckle or six over what the Dodgers are doing. Or, rather, what they're not doing, at the moment.

It becomes more and more obvious that it was Laughing Larry's system of building which made a pennant winner, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, out of the Bums.

And now that his system is out, the Flatbush Follies show distinct signs of coming apart at the seams. The Dodgers are nose-diving along on a losing streak that reached seven games last night when they were cuffed around 7-4 by the Cardinals as Mort Cooper chalked up his 15th win.

Larry operated on the system that you have to spend money to put together a winner and his operations had the customers flocking into Ebbets field but his free and easy way of getting rid of money didn't sit too well with the stockholders. And last summer, he was practically invited to hand over the keys to the safe.

Branch the Reverend Rickey was brought in, but his methods of saving a buck here and two bits there just aren't getting Brooklyn anywhere near front and center in the National league.

Pitching is what the Bums need most. Last night Max Macon lasted just long enough to stake the Cards to a five-run first inning. That stretched St. Louis' National league to 11 full games over the Pittsburgh Pirates, who dropped a 6-1 decision to Boston.

In the American league, the Washington Senators belted the sagging St. Louis Browns twice, 7-4 and 3-0 and moved back up to second place.

The pace-setting Yankees had a three-hitter thrown at them by Virgil (Fire) Trucks and Roy Henshaw, and were blanked 4-0 by Detroit in the opener but they came back with a 16-hit spree to take the nightcap, 12-4.

The New York Giants lasted for a 5-3 verdict over the Cincinnati Reds and the Cleveland Indians took an 11-9 decision over the Red Sox. Both Chicago and Philadelphia teams were idle.

Only One Team Still Unbeaten

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Cleveland, only undefeated team in the Ohio American Legion Junior Baseball tournament, meets Springfield in the tourney's sole contest scheduled today.

A Cleveland victory would eliminate once-defeated Springfield and would pit the lake city nine against Cincinnati's defending champions for the title Thursday.

Should Springfield win, however, it would tangle with Cincinnati, also a one-time loser, and the winner would play Cleveland for the championship.

The tourney is being conducted on a two-losses-and-out basis.

Cleveland won top position in the tournament after defeating Cincinnati, 1 to 0, yesterday. In other games, Cincinnati defeated Portsmouth 7-1 and Columbus, 11-4; Springfield eliminated Warren 6-3, and downed Zanesville, 7-2. Previously, Zanesville had knocked out Lima 9-7.

RIDDLE'S ERRORLESS STREAK COMES TO END

CINCINNATI —(INS)— Elmer Riddle's one hundred and second major league game without an error today was just a record on the books. The longest errorless streak by a big league pitcher came to an end when Riddle bobbled Harry Feldman's bunt and trying for a force of Billy Jurges at second, threw wide past Shortsop Eddie Miller. The action occurred in yesterday's game with the New York Giants, who won, 5 to 3.

Keller Sets Homer Pace

Drives Toward Title He Missed In Past.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK —(INS)— That dull clattering you hear of a late afternoon these days is King Kong Keller winning the major league home run championship.

King Kong, or the Brute, or Tarzan, as he is variously known by intimates, has seemed all along like a virtual cinch to take the distance-clouting crown this season and there he is now, out in front and breezing. He won't set a record. That's quite apparent, but he's the man the rest have to beat out as he powers the New York Yankees toward another pennant.

He has been the perpetual runnerup of the past—always a bat-swish or two behind the DiMaggios and the Williamses, but they are gone now and the rest can't quite keep up with the stocky outfielder from Maryland despite the fact that he was laid up a couple of weeks and therefore missed chances to belt three or four more than his current total.

After going hitless yesterday in the first game of a double header with the Detroit Tigers, Keller came back in the nightcap with three hits, including home runs No. 16 and 17. With a third of the season, or a little more, still left to play, he should windup with some thing like 26 four-masters. Not terrific, to be sure. Only in the neighborhood of half the record total of 60 established by Babe Ruth, but it isn't exactly bush league slugging either.

Keller, third baseman Bill Johnson and First Baseman Nick Etten are the big guns of the Yanks right now, the batting pace-setters for a club which is winning the pennant mostly on pitching and fielding.

Yet, that trio is doing some significant hitting, Keller with his homers, Johnson with his all-around timely belting and Etten with his high total of hits and his ability to drive in the runs.

The batting averages of the Yankees is nothing to brag about —nothing like they were when they were really the Bronx Bombers, but they still pack power in the clutch. Keller, Johnson and Etten make up about as good a hitting trio as you will find in the American league on any one club. If they are not the best as a unit they are not far behind. And Johnny Lindell, the pitcher made over into an outfielder, has a tie for triples.

Search through the vital statistics and you will find the Yanks still win with talent. The only thing is they suffer some by comparison with the Yanks we used to know. But what club doesn't?

Somehow, the Yankee team doesn't wear out completely as it grows older, for year after year newcomers come bouncing into the lineup, and that seems to be the way to keep at or near the top. For instance, take the team currently breezing along and you will find more new faces than old manning the guns. In that second game yesterday the only Yanks of the field who have been around for three or four years were Crosetti, Gordon and Keller.

The war has had much to do with the turnover. When all the fireworks finally end, the club that sent away the youngest men will be the one with the best chance of getting in high quickly, unless in the midst of the expected boom there is wholesale trading in which case the club with the most money and determination is likely to do best at the outset.

Some of the players who were in or near their prime won't be the same again. They are the ones the moguls will have to replace in a wild scuffle.

Blues Blast Red Bird Title Hopes

(By Associated Press)

Paradoxical as it sounds, the brilliant pitching of the last place Kansas City Blues is helping the Milwaukee Brewers run away from the rest of the American Association field.

After knocking Indianapolis from second place by winning four straight games, Kansas City last night started in on Columbus, the new runner up, and won two more games. This coupled with Milwaukee's part double defeat of Toledo enabled the Brewers to increase their league lead to five games.

The scores were Kansas City 3-1 Columbus 1-0 and Milwaukee 3-4 Toledo 2-2.

Between blackout tests at Louisville, St. Paul defeated the Colonels 11-8. Indianapolis, unable to shake off a losing streak, lost to Minneapolis, 4-3, the Indians' eighth straight setback.

First contest will be played Tuesday, Aug. 10 at 2 p. m. on the Heise park diamond in Galion and the return engagement will be played at Liberty park Aug. 12 or 13, the date having not yet been decided.

Fike said he would take a squad of 15 boys to Galion.

The Junior circuit outfit has a game scheduled with Ashland team Aug. 19 at 6:15 p. m. on the Liberty park field. Prospect park softballers will meet an Ashland outfit under the lights of Brookside park Aug. 19.

Cripples Click For White Sox

By ARNOLD DERLITZKI

CHICAGO —(AP)— If it's company that misery loves, Luke Appling, that veteran of aches and pains, now has it in none other that Wally Moses, his Chicago White Sox teammate.

The moans and groans of these two American league campaigners are becoming sweet music to Manager Jimmy Dykes although he peeks at the records which show:

That the 34 years old Appling has taken over the league leadership in batting with .331;

That Moses, going on 32 and in his ninth year in the majors, has become the big league's base stealing sensation, with a total of 33.

Moses, troubled recently by aching legs, told Dykes before Sunday's double header at Philadelphia, "my leg hurts, Jim, and I'm not feeling very good. Guess I won't try running today."

So he tripled, singled and stole one base in the first game; in the second he eliminated the temptation to steal by hitting a homer and a triple. But the next night he stole three bases.

"So I told that Moses to stay away from the ball park when he feels good," Dykes remarked afterward. "I don't want him playing for me unless he feels unhealthy . . . like Appling."

Dykes long has listened to Appling's string of miseries which this season alone included, according to Luke, A) torn stomach muscle, B) pink eye, C) violent headaches, D) stomach disorder, E) slight attack of flu, F) minor and major bruises, welts, spike wounds.

Yet, come game time, Appling was ready for his customary short-stop chore.

BOOK FINAL BOUT BEFORE ARMY CALL

PITTSBURGH —(U.P.)— War department orders today stamped the next bouts of welterweights Young Kid McCoy and Ray (Sugar) Robinson, both of the army, as their last in the professional ring for the duration.

Although it was not revealed whether a general order affecting other boxers in the armed services had been issued, McCoy will wind up his activity against Fritzie Zivic here Aug. 9, while Robinson's final bout will be his Aug. 26 meeting with Henry Armstrong in New York.

FIX NEW RULES FOR BOXING CHAMPIONS

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The National Boxing association today announced that it will now require world champions not in the armed forces to defend their titles against logical contenders once every three months instead of every six months as heretofore.

Harvey L. Miller, executive secretary of the NBA, said that the rule is for the duration only and is intended to increase interest in boxing.

BIG BILL LEE SOLD TO PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)— Big Bill Lee, veteran bespectacled right-hander, today was the latest addition to the Phillies pitching staff.

In announcing Lee's purchase from the Chicago Cubs for an undisclosed price, President Bill Cox, of the Quakers, disclosed that the Cubs had claimed Catcher Mickey Livingston for the waiver price.

Veeck Packs Brewer Park

Mixes a Little Barnum With Baseball Menu.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

CHICAGO —(INS)— Young Bill Veeck, jr., who has run a mortgage into a quarterly dividend by giving the Milwaukee Brewers the old avon comedy four treatment with a series of antics that would have deeply chagrined Phineas T. Barnum, explained his formula with an epigram yesterday.

* * *

"The meat always looks better with a garnish of greens," said he, eyeing us to see whether we understood, which we did not.

So he went on to expound further upon this flight of fancy, saying that the customer at a ball park was basicaly no different than the customer at a butcher shop who naturally thought you were all right if you tossed in, gratis, a divot of liver or a bouquet of soup bones with his meat order. And was sure of it if you stuffed Junior's pockets with rock candy, So?

So . . . he comes back to your butcher shop or your ball park. And everybody's very happy, notably the stockholders; especially if they're the Milwaukee stockholders who not so long ago were going down and jump off the Pergola, if any, at city hall—for the convenience of the coroner.

But that was before young Bill Veeck's Brewers first led the minor league field in attendance last year and then in 1943 ran approximately 70,000 ahead of that figure, as of today.

"As of today," repeated young Veeck, "the important thing is we're leading the American Association in the standing of the clubs.

"For that's what we're selling —good baseball. Anything else we do, we're just giving away. It's the old Larry MacPhail technique. People said he spent a lot of money in Brooklyn, and all I can say is that he'd have been an awful sucker, if he didn't.

"The answer is, if you spend $1.00 in order to get back $1.10, you look like a pretty smart fellow on the books."

He also looked like a very smart fellow off the books yesterday, with his crew haircut and his sharp and attentive though oddly deferential eye. He was at Wrigley field in the road secretary's office during the get-together of the Wrigley clans in which the Cubs just did manage to beat the Brewers, 7-6, in 10 innings. And a superb feeling of amity and fellowship prevailed throughout.

But we don't think anybody was kidding anybody . . . much.

Young Bill Veeck is the son of a former president and general manager of the Cubs. His team manager, Charle Grimm, was among the most popular and certainly not the least successful of Cub managers in the past. The Cubs, of course, have a general manager and a team manager now —and they're all working for the same man.

Therefore, whatever horseplay went on in the pink patootie room—or whatever they call it—doubtless looked and sounded like the renewal of a beautiful friendship. But somehow we gravely suspect that all that nonsense ran right up the middle of the street for Mrs. Sweeney's husband.

Townsend Sees Good Football

COLUMBUS —(INS)— H. R. Townsend, commissioner of the Ohio State High School Athletic association, today asserted that high school football in Ohio this fall will not be greatly affected by the war.

"Although the boys playing this fall will be younger," Townsend said, "there is sufficient playing material to insure a good brand of football."

"Our problem in this state, as in most of the other states, is transportation and available coaching material," he added.

According to the commissioner, the transportation situation is not severe as most of the high school teams this season will be playing opponents located in the near vicinity.

A resolution adopted by the Ohio Football Coaches association asking that spring football practice be discontinued will be discussed by the state board at a meeting Aug. 14.

Keltner Hits Two Homers

Celebrates Birth of Son As Indians Win.

CLEVELAND—(AP)— The Cleveland Indians headed home today after completing their longest road trip of the season—a jaunt which Manager Lou Boudreau had declared would decide Tribal pennant aspirations.

When the Redskins left the shores of Lake Erie in mid-July, the Tribesmen were eight games behind the league-leading New York Yankees and now are 11½ games off the pace after winning 11 of 20 on their journey.

They wound up their excursion with an 11 to 9 verdict over the Boston Red Sox yesterday. Jim Bagby was credited with his 11th triumph of the season but he had to have help from Allie Reynolds in the ninth when the Sox staged a six-run uprising.

The Indians staked Bagby to an 8 to 0 lead going into the seventh heat but he was slugged for 12 hits in the last three after holding the Sox to four scattered singles in the first six frames.

Ken Keltner and Buddy Rosar contributed the heavy stick work for the Indians. Keltner celebrated the arrival of his second child, a seven-pound boy, with two homers, while Rosar also slammed a round tripper. Ray Mack collected three hits.

The club is idle until the series opener Friday with the St. Louis Browns.

LOSE FINALE

CINCINNATI —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds embarked on their longest road trip of the season today—a jaunt that will keep them away from home for 21 days during which they will visit the home parks of the other seven clubs in the league.

Tonight they will drop at Fort Sheridan, Ill., for an exhibition game with the soldiers. On Friday they open a five game series with the Chicago Cubs.

The Reds closed their home stay yesterday on a sour note taking a 5 to 3 pasting from the New York Giants at the hands of Harry Feldman and Rube Fischer.

While the Reds were held to four singles and a double, the New Yorkers pounded Elmer Riddle for 13 hits before driving him to the showers in the ninth.

In the seventh inning the Reds loaded the bases twice but succeeded in scoring only one tally—and that one was forced in when Feldman hit Eric Tipton on the wrist with a pitched ball.

Elmer Riddle was charged with the first error in his major league career in the third round when his wide throw of Feldman's attempted sacrifice pulled Eddie Miller off second bse. It was the longest errorless run by a pitcher in big league history. His string of 101 games without an error far surpasses the previous big league record of 88 set by Ted Lyons of the Chicago White Sox from Aug. 11, 1934 to June 12, 1938.

Council Approves 5 Sewer, Street, Water Programs

TAKES ACTION ON PROJECTS TO COST $50,000

South End Sanitary Sewer Job Largest of Programs Winning Approval.

After considerable discussion about where the city was going to get the money for the work, city council last night approved five sewer, street, and water projects involving the expenditure of close to $50,000.

Largest of the projects is a $27,500 sanitary sewer job for the south end of the city, a proprosal of Councilman Roy Vaughn.

The measure had received the first of three readings by council last month and last night it was approved by a unanimous vote, bringing a warning from Russell Porch, chairman of the finance committee, that "We are going to have to limit our expenditures from now on."

While agreeing that the project was needed, Porch refused to back it last night until he had been assured it wouldn't leave the city's general fund dangerously low after council provides for the purchase of 1,000 acres for the airport expansion. The land is expected to cost about $100,000.

The sewer project calls for the construction of an intercepting sanitary sewer between the intersection of South Diamond street and Bradford avenue and South Main street and Raleigh avenue.

Also approved was a sanitary sewer extension from the intersection of Woodhill and Bigelow roads to a point a short distance northward. The work will eliminate the flow of sewage across garden plots in the area, it was pointed out.

Council passed an ordinance providing for the construction of eight-inch water mains on East First street from Bushnell street to the Ideal Electric Manufacturing company plant and on Newman street between Wayne and Spring streets.

The project, expected to cost $6,600, will afford more fire protection for the Ideal Electric and the Hughes-Keenan company plants, said Councilman C. N. Shultz, sponsor of the measure.

An additional $6,000 to provide materials for repairing more streets was appropriated by council which specified that half of the money must be taken from the general fund and half from the auto registration receipts.

Mayor W. J. Locke appeared before council to ask for the street repair funds, asserting that more money is needed to carry out the extensive street program started last spring.

When it was brought out that the city must save all the money possible for the airport project, the mayor said: "I think we'd be criticized if we spent a large amount for an airport and let our streets go to pieces."

Council placed its final approval on the paving of Elmwood drive at the extreme western edge of the city. The paving, which will extend north from West Fourth street, will be of 22-foot concrete.

NINE YOUTHS OFF FOR NAVY

Nine youths from the Mansfield area have reported to Cleveland during the past week for physical examinations for the navy.

George A. Hollinger, Mansfield R. D. 3, left Saturday morning while the other eight left Tuesday. They are William J. Smtih, 139 Carpenter road; Carl D. Lash, 224 Atcheson avenue; Harold L. PARKING METER RECEIPTS $3,622

Mansfield's parking meters produced $3,622 in July for a daily average of $134.16, slightly below the June figures, L. L. Kochenderfer, meter inspector, reported today.

The collections for last month brought the total for the first seven months of 1943 to $22,511 and the total since meters were installed to $116,413.

Kochenderfer said he took 394 slugs from the meters last month in addition to the test slugs used by police to determine whether a meter is operating.

THREE RESIGN AT CRESTLINE

Board of Education Fills One Vacancy at Recent Meeting.

CRESTLINE — Resignations of three high school teachers were received at a meeting of the board of education Monday evening.

They were Mrs. Dorothy Barton, dramatics and Latin, Mary Alice Foster, social science and Mrs. Betty Chester Richards, home economics.

Only vacancy filled was that of the home economic teacher, Mrs. A. T. Enoch being hired for this position. She was formerly employed in the same capacity but resigned because of her marriage and the restriction of married teachers in the local school. This ban has been lifted because of war conditions.

Mrs. Enoch taught the past two years in the New Washington school.

Other vacancies on the board will be filled at a special meeting.

Fred Hesser, president, was in charge of the meeting. The board set the opening day of school for Tuesday following Labor day, Sept. 7.

Mrs. Schweyer was born April 9, 1908, near New Philadelphia, coming to Mansfield in 1938. She was a member of First Lutheran church here.

Surviving are her husband; one daughter, Phyllis Jean, and a son, William, both at home; one sister, Mrs. Harry Renner, New Philadelphia.

The body is at the Finefrock funeral home. Funeral arrangements were incomplete early this afternoon.

GETS PROPOSAL

Council Given Request To Study Delinquency.

City council last night received without comment Mayor W. J. Locke's letter asking council to study the city's delinquency problem with a view to the possible enactment of a curfew ordinance.

With the letter addressed to council the mayor included one from the city park commission which urged a curfew as a means of keeping young people out of the parks and off streets late at night.

Council filed both letters and gave no hint as to when the problem might be taken under consideration.

RICHLAND DADS TO HEAR ARMY CALL BY OCT. 1

One Board Announces It'll Have To Dip Deeply Into Father Class.

boards will continue to give due regard to the essential requirements of agriculture, war production, and activity in support of the war effort," Goble said.

Meanwhile in Washington, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont). assailed the selective service plan for drafting pre-Pearl harbor fathers after Oct. 1, asserting "it would seem that the only purpose is the psychological effect on Russia at the peace table, if and when she attends a peace conference."

"We should not play power politics with American lives," Wheeler said in a statement issued from Belton, Mont.

The Montanan, who has six children, described the action as contrary to expressed congressional sentiment as reflected in house passage of the Kilday bill to defer fathers until all single men within a state have been exhausted, and approval by the senate military affairs committee of his own bill to exempt fathers from the draft until Jan. 1.1944.

Wheeler asserted "the army's own figures" indicated a sufficient pool for domestic and overseas service through 1944.

At the same time, the house military affairs subcommittee on manpower, before which war plant executives have testified that current draft schedules promise impairment of essential production, invited Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, to present the army's side of the personnel picture at hearing in Los Angeles.

Rep. John M. Costello (D-Calif.) subcommittee chairman, said he had asked Hershey to appear before the subcommittee Saturday, following the draft director's slated conferences Friday in Sacramento on west coast manpower conditions.

Donald Douglas, president of Douglas Aircraft company, informed the subcommittee yesterday that new selective service regulations would render 57,000 Pacific coast aircraft workers eligible for induction.

In the California Douglas plants, he added, contemplated draft plans would withdraw manpower equivalent to the production of more than 600 A-20 attack bombers during the final six months of this year, and would result in a loss of engineering personnel amounting to 20,400 man-hours weekly.

"If the loss of 20,400 hours were applied to new design work under which Douglas is rushing availability of entirely new army attack bombers and navy dive bombers, it would reduce prograss to a mere 7 per cent of the present rate, and 93 per cent of the current work on these models would be lost," he declared.

H. E. Ryker, vice president in charge of manufacturing at Vega Aircraft Corp., told the subcommittee induction of tool and die makers, together with material shortages, might impede production of B-17 bombers in his plant.

Fathers now facing military conscription stand a greatly reduced chance of getting a commission.

Military officials said today the road to an army officers' rating had not been closed, but they declared it has become considerably rockier in recent months.

Quotas for officer candidate schools have been reduced drastically, the basic training period is being extended by nearly one-third, and preference is being given to men with overseas service.

Pie Latest to Go On List of Items Being Rationed

Now, the rationing has come down to pies—nice juicy fruit pies.

At least the pies are being rationed to restaurants, which means that you'll probably be affected sooner or later.

One Mansfield baker said it is so difficult to get fruit this year that fewer pies can be made and these must be rationed among the restaurants.

Restaurants are given pies according to the supply that the baker has on hand and according to the amount that they bought last year.

GYMNASTIC DANCER FIRED FROM $5,600 POST AS OEW ECONOMIST

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—John Bovingdon, described by Rep. Dies as a ballet dancer, was fired today from his $5,600-a-year job as principal economic analyst for the Office of Economic Warfare.

Bovingdon, whose recent appointment to the newly created OEW post aroused criticism, earlier today had written Director Leo T. Crosley that he could not accede to the OEW director's suggestion that he resign.

Crowley wrote Bovingdon:

"I have concluded that your continued services will not be for the best interests of the agency. Your services as principal economic analyst of the Office of Economic Warfare are therefore terminated as of the close of business on this date."

Crowley referred to his meeting yesterday with Bovingdon, and added that the OEW director "was under the impression that we had jointly reached the conclusion that your resignation, under all the circumstances, would be for the best interest of the Office of Economic warfare. Your letter of this date which I understand you have also released to the press without consulting me, indicates that you now are of a different view."

In his letter to Crowley Bovingdon said he accepted the post with OEW in good faith and with a desire to help win the war, adding he believed the administration must not "run for cover" each time the Dies committee "think up a new angle for smearing."

Bovingdon, 53, said Monday he had taken up rhythmic gymnastics for his health, and was not a ballet dancer. He added he was a graduate from Harvard in 1915, became a professor of economics in Keio University, Tokyo, and from 1920 to 1922 was an economic analyst for the American Woolen company. He gave rhythmic gymnastic exhibitions abroad until 1941.

DELAYS ACTION ON DEPOSITORY

Absence of Legislation Cause of Snag in Picking Bank For City Funds.

Because there was no legislation ready for action last night on the selection of a depository for city funds for the next two years, council deferred action until the September meeting, on the advice of Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner.

Two bids on the funds, one from the Mansfield Savings Trust National bank and the other from the Farmers Savings and Trust company, were opened at last night's council meeting.

The Mansfield Savings Trust bank offered to accept all the funds, paying one-fourth of one per cent interest per year on the active funds. The Farmers bank asked for a maximum of $200,000 of active city funds.

Asked by council why the legislation for naming a depository had not been drawn up, Wagner replied that no councilman had requested it. He said it was his understanding that he wasn't to draw up an ordinance until a member of council made the request and agreed to sponsor it.

Pointing out today that the awarding had been advertised for last night and the depository period was to start Sept. 2, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said: "I hope this arrangement will work out all right."

Council's regular meeting for next month is not until Sept. 7, five days after the depository period date.

LOSES GAS

Mansfielder's Rations Revoked After Speeding Arrest.

Clifford E. Tittle, a Mansfield automobile mechanic, today had lost his gasoline rations for six months by order of the Cleveland OPA office following his conviction in Mansfield municipal court for driving 70 miles an hour.

C. A. Rogers, special OPA hearings officers in Cleveland, told The News-Journal that Tittle was driving another person's car and could offer no explanation of why he was driving so fast. Tittle was cited by state highway patrolmen June 11 on U. S. Route 42.

"The OPA doesn't intend to become an agency for punishing motorists, but we must make an example of cases such as this," Rogers said.

The state highway patrol turns the names of speeder over to the OPA following the court hearings.

Molly Pitcher Day To Be Observed In City Saturday

Molly Pitcher Day will be observed in Mansfield as well as throughout the nation Saturday with the buying of war stamps and bonds, Mrs. Louis Ott, jr., chairman of the county women's war savings committee announced today.

Local chairman for the sale of the stamps and bonds is Miss Barbara Hartman. The stamps will be on sale in stores from 9:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m. and in booths along the streets until 9 p. m.

Everyone who buys anything from a ten cent war stamp to a bond in the banks, stores or the booths receive a red tag with a picture of a blue pitcher and the words "Fill the pitcher with bonds and stamps on Molly Pitcher Day."

The day is being observed in commemoration of Molly Pitcher who is supposed to have taken her husband's place in the Revolutionary War after he had been shot and saved the gun from the British.

HEALTH STEP

Huston Tells Club of Purpose of Meat Regulations.

"Meat regulations are designed to protect the health of the community against the slaughter of unfit animals and preparation of meats under unsanitary conditions," C. H. Huston, chairman of the Richland county meat committee, said today in an address before the Optimist club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

He explained that the purpose of the county meat committee is not to deprive legitimate wholesalers, slaughterers, and meat dealers of a meat supply but to protect them from the black market dealers.

According to Huston, the public must become interested in getting good meat and eliminating "bootleg dealers" before any decisive action will be taken by civic groups with the authority.

BIDS FAIL

So City Decides To Build Its Own Sewer Manholes.

Unable to get any bidders on a manhole construction project, the city was ready today to begin building its own manholes in sewers, buying its own materials and providing its own labor, Mayor W. J. Locke said.

He said the city had hoped to build 20 manholes during the summer at a cost of $1,400, but contractors said the increasing cost of labor and materials made it impossible for them to do the work at that figure.

By using old paving brick in the construction and putting about three city workers on the job, the city expects to be able to handle the work within the cost estimate, the mayor said.

Manholes in some sewers are as much as 700 feet apart, handicapping workers when they are called to clean out the sewers, it was pointed out.

MALTA GETS ITS POETIC REVENGE WITH INVASION

Eisenhower Chooses Heavily Bombed Island as His Headquarters.

(By International News Service)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—A poetic revenge probably without parallel in history was revealed today with official disclosure that Malta, the Mediterranean island bombed 3,000 times by the Nazis and Italians, was chosen as official headquarters for the invasion of Sicily.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower established and maintained headquarters on the tiny rocky islet and from there directed the most ambitious and most successful amphibious operation in the annals of warfare.

Malta was chosen because of its strategic importance. But its quarter million residents, who collectively received an award from King George VI for their incredible courage in the face of ceaseless and remorseless attack, must have sensed in this decision of Gen. Eisenhower a feeling of just vengeance and retribution. It was from Sicily that the Axis bombers came for three long years to pour their loads of death and destruction upon Malta.

Gen. Eisenhower established his headquarters in an ancient palace on the southern most tip of the island. After supervising last minute arrangements on the night of July 9, he went to sleep at 1:30 Saturday morning on a field cot in a small room adjoining the main GHQ office where huge maps and invasion charts were spread on tables and nailed upon the walls.

At 5 a. m. he was awakened by his aide, Commander Butcher. When he arose, the skies over Malta were still filled with gliders carrying reinforcements to the men already battling the defenders of Sicily. The general looked upward and raised his hand in smart salute.

"He was fully aware this meant nothing to the men flying above him," Commander Butcher said. "But that's the way he felt about them."

In a personal tribute to the people of Malta, Gen. Eisenhower issued a statement which said:

"Malta is symbolic of the experience of the United Nations in this war.

"Malta has passed successively through stages of woeful unpreparedness, tenacious endurance, intensive preparation and the initiation of a fierce offensive.

"It is resolutely determined to maintain the rising crescendo of attack until the whole task is complete. For this inspiring example, the United Nations will be forever indebted to Field Marshal Lord Gort, the fighting services under his command and to every citizens of the heroic island."

CARRY DISEASE

ITHACA, N. Y.—(INS)—Mice are probably carriers of the virus that causes infantile paralysis in human beings, Dr. William A. Holla, Cornellian and health commissioner of Westchester county said in announcing the results of investigations conducted independently by two scientists as a result of the outbreak of five cases of infantile paralysis in a small area of White Plains last fall.

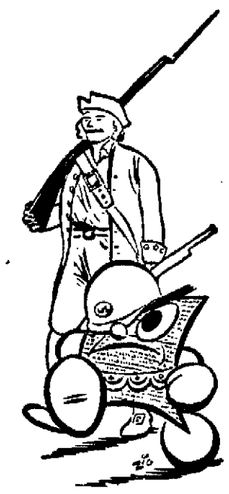
MINUTE MEN
1775 and 1943



News-Journal WANT ADS have earned the title "minute men" by the speed with which they raise money for bonds, find capable help for war industries and locate living quarters for war workers.

You can lay aside a nice nest egg for yourself and help the war program at the same time by selling your no-longer-needed articles, renting out your spare room to new-comers, etc. AND converting the money into bonds.

JUDGE PUFFLE— By Gene Ahern

ISN'T THAT THE BIG-GAME HUNTER WHO TELLS US AT HOME ABOUT HIS EXPLOITS WITH THE FEROCIOUS BEASTS OF THE JUNGLE?
ONE THRILLER WAS THE TIME HE SLEW A LION WITH A POCKET-KNIFE, USING HIS SUSPENDERS AS A SLINGSHOT TO HURL IT!
THE ONE I THINK IS A HAIR-STANDER, WAS WHEN HE EMPTIED A BOTTLE OF SLEEPING-PILLS DOWN A GORILLA'S THROAT WHILE IT WAS STARTING TO CRUSH HIM!

Gathering Herb Seeds From Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association.

WHILE the fresh green leaves flowers and oil of many herbs are gathered for us during midsummer other herbs of which the seeds are used are gathered as soon as they ripen The seeds of fennel dill, fennel coriander, caraway bene and anise are used more than are the stems and leaves

If you have been growing any of the above named herbs in your Victory garden remember that when harvesting, the seed heads should be cut with as short stems as possible, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph

After harvesting these herbs spread the seed heads out on a clean cloth for about a week or longer to dry. Do not spread the seeds where there is any dampness. The attic is suggested as a good place Turn the seeds often to facilitate drying After the seeds are thoroughly dry the will separate easily from the stem. The chaff can be removed from the seeds by blowing on them gently.

Store the seeds when clean and dry in covered glass jars, carefully labeled

NAVY SCHOOL SEEMS LIKE A BIG PLAYHOUSE

Abandoned Filling Station Serves as Classroom For War Games.

(By Central Press)

WASHINGTON—In an abandoned automobile service station on H street in Washington is what seems to be pin ball players' paradise, an adult's playhouse for war games and an airplane parts and material shop where all the props are make-believe.

Actually, it is none of these things. It is the home of the Navy's synthetic training devices, where pilots and gunners are schooled so that when they take the air they will be ready for it.

It is designed to save lives and time and aircraft, and the navy believes it is achieving its purpose.

The three-story structure houses everything that goes into an airplane. Here student pilots and gunners can shoot BB-shot through machine guns at pasteboard models of enemy planes, or they can climb into a training turret and hear the sound of motors through earphones, look through a make-believe telescopic sight and see images of attacking planes lunge toward them from every angle.

A pilot also can listen to records that are actual reproductions of conversations between military pilots and commercial airline control tower operators. These conversations are essential in flying certain commercial radio beams in wartime, and is becoming familiar with the language fliers use when conversing with civil airways ground crews.

If the flier wants to know how such conversations are carried on at sea he can learn the bugle, bell, siren and boatswain's calls, thus conditioning himself to react instinctively when on shipboard, where so many calls in wartime are emergency messages. Better yet, if the pilot would like knowing beforehand how his enemy will look, he can use the stereoscopic range estimator, which came right out of his grandmother's parlor.

This gadget shows color film slides of U. S and enemy aircraft in three-dimensional aspect, at various ranges and altitudes.

A more thrilling version of this machine is the aerial gunnery training card, 8x5-inch placards showing enemy airplanes in attack positions. The path and speed of the gunner's plane and the speed of the enemy plane are given, and the students do some lightning arithmetic, grips a make-believe machine-gun handle and lets fly. A solid line shows the path of the bullet, and a dotted line shows the path of the attacking plane. It doesn't take long for a man exposed to this sort of training to eliminate the reasons for his faulty aiming.

The latest thing in simulated machine-gun operation is provided by the BB machine gun installations, which are made of non-critical material and shoot BBs or plastic pellets. A spotlight mounted on the gun makes the shot shine like tracer fire. The gun requires a 110-volt circuit and shoots 250 rounds a minute at a muzzle velocity of 200 feet per second. A clapper nearby convinces the gunner that he has his hands wrapped around the stock of a real machine gun.

area, and said many vehicles were destroyed by fighters which were active all day long.

In the offensive against the Italian mainland, Allied aircraft again struck at Naples.

Hits were scored on an enemy merchantship in attacks on shipping.

In all the Allied air activity four enemy planes were destroyed at a cost of two Allied aircraft, the communique said.

With the Axis defense line around the base of Mount Etna cracked in numerous places, the American Seventh army under Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., and the British and Canadian Eighth army were closing in on the last tiny triangle of land which barred the way to the Italian mainland.

The Americans, strongly supported by the airforce, were beating their way up the Tyrrhenian coast road with Milazzo, 20 miles from Messina, as the next objective. At the same time an inland column pushed ahead from Troina on the Taormina road toward Randazzo, which lies at the northern base of Mt. Etna.

To the southeast Canadian forces were leaping from hill to hill in an advance which had led them from Regalbuto to Centuripe, with Biancavilla and Adrano, both on the Mt. Etna road, as their next immediate goal.

Thousands of German and Italian troops have been by-passed in their mountain fortifications by the swiftly advancing Allied columns blasting their way over the mountainous roads.

The Americans, with pride typical of all good troops, are out to beat the British to Messina. One American outfit which has had 23 days of steady, hard fighting on Sicily, was withdrawn from the line Sunday night and replaced by another outfit, veteran of the Tunisian campaign.

The new troops, marching from hill to hill alongside Moroccan Goums, were knocking out the heaviest German defenses with motorized Long Tom 155's and scaling the steepest ridges to oust the Axis troops at bayonet point. The steady advance gave the fleeing Axis soldiers no time to reorganize their lines.

The appearance of fresh American troops and the rested British 78th division gave the Allied push that extra energy which it needed to sustain the offensive now entering its fourth day.

Many of the American troops in Sicily have been in almost constant action since they landed on the island.

Italians Hurry To Get Out of Greece

ISTANBUL—(Delayed)—(AP)—Movement of Italian troops out of Greece toward Albania has reached the proportions of a general withdrawal, reports from the Balkans indicated today.

Italians leaving Greece apparently were being concentrated in Albania for evacuation across the Adriatic to Italy. Other Italian units reported to be leaving Montenegro were heading north in the direction of Trieste and Fiume.

It was believed that no Italian troops remain in Greece south of Corinth.

Eden Insists It's 'Surrender'

LONDON—(AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden reiterated in the house of commons today that the Allies had offered Italy no peace terms when asked now it happened that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower had spoken of 'honorable conditions of peace' in his recent broadcast to the Italian people.

Declaring that the Allies continue to demand unconditional surrender, Eden said shortly:

I do not want to argue the matter now, but I can understand circumstances in which unconditional surrender might not be dishonorable to those who made it."

Eden's statement gave the lie to German broadcasts yesterday which quoted a Geneva dispatch as saying President Roosevelt had advanced a seven-point armistice proposal to Italy.

It came amid indication of growing Italian resistance to unconditional surrender demands which strengthened the conviction that an all-out Allied invasion of Italy was the only course left open to the Allies to knock her out of the war.

Allies Count on Cancelling Fleet

WASHINGTON—(AP)—There is growing opinion in naval circles here that the Allies can count with reasonable certainty on capturing or destroying the major portion of Italy's hapless fleet possibly soon.

This would be more than bad news for Tokyo's admirals. The Mediterranean and the Pacific are not separated for all practical purposes in this global war.

What becomes of the Italian fleet is of utmost interest to military and naval authorities here because of the effect it is Twenty-nine of these barges, some exploding so violently as to indicate they carried ammunition, were wrecked yesterday near Cape Gloucester, New Britain, and Finschhafen, New Guinea.

Today's communique said that the barges destroyed within the past 10 days included many of the large troop-carrying type and the loss of life must have been considerable.

LONDON — (ANS) — The Nazi news agency DNB today broadcast a Tokyo claim that Allied troops south of Salamaua, New Guinea, were forced to abandon their positions after hard fighting.

The claim was not substantiated in Allied quarters.

REVEALS 'FARM SOVIET' PLAN

Gannett Says FDR Plans To Put Farmers Under Contract.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Newspaper Publisher Frank E. Gannett today accused the Roosevelt administration of attempting to "Sovietize" the American farmer.

An article in the Gannett newspapers, said administration officials were preparing a plan for 1944 which would force all farmers to produce "when and what" the government wants them to.

The government would let contracts to the farmers just as it does to the manufacturer for planes, contracts under which the farmer would be guaranteed set prices if he agreed to grow what the government wanted him to grow, it said.

MOUNT VERNON —(AP)— The board of the Vine Street Church of Christ today prepared to appeal to a higher court in its effort to prevent 16 expelled members from entering the house of worship.

Common Pleas Judge Fred B. Wickham of Delaware dismissed yesterday a petition seeking to restrain the expelled members from entering the church and C. B. McClintock of Canton, attorney representing the church board, said the case would be carried to the Ohio supreme court if necessary.

found to have on the war against Britain.

The final crushing of Italy, if it entails the surrender of the force, will facilitate greatly the organization of amphibious forces for an assault of Burma this fall.

Once Allied operators in the Mediterranean are secure from the threat of enemy attack, warships could be shifted to the Burma theater immediately.

These ships have been held in the Mediterranean against the possibility that the Italians might reverse their 'fleet-in-being' strategy and send their warships against Allied convoys or landing forces. Battered and disorganized though the Italian navy is, some of its remaining units might do considerable damage if they fell upon supply ships or transports inadequately protected.

His Shooting Started Riots

Shooting of this soldier, Pvt. Robert Bandy, a Negro M. P., when he allegedly interfered with a New York policeman making an arrest in a Harlem hotel led to the violent rioting that brought death to five persons, injuries to 600 and caused $5,000,000 property damage. Bandy, who was off duty when the incident occurred, is pictured in Bellevue hospital. His wound is minor.

to acquire the 1,000 acres needed to expand the airport.

Meanwhile, the problem of relocating State Route 13 which crosses the proposed airport was worrying the city today, and the mayor said he planned to go to Columbus Thursday to confer with the state highway department on the relocation job. He was told several days ago by the state that there is no money available at present to finance the relocation.

State highway engineers, however, have started surveying the land in the vicinity of the airport, indicating that the state plans to start action soon on the project.

It is expected that the highway route will be changed to take it westward and then north around the airport land.

When negotiations for the land have been completed, council will set up funds for buying the properties so the Civil Aeronautics authority can start grading the land about the first of next year.

The city now has approximately $120,000 in sight to buy the properties and get the work started. That amount includes $50,000 or $60,000 from the general fund and the rest in bonds which could be issued within the 10-mill tax limitation.

agent said. Some oats has been threshed because farmers want to get the grain in the bins to save as much of it as possible, he added.

While the wheat was less seriously hit by recent storms, spring rains induced the spread of rust and scab, leaving the grain in poor condition for market, millers said.

Wheat is still reaching Mansfield mills in small quantities despite increased harvest activities in the past few days. With more space in their bins this year, farmers apparently are holding the grain for higher prices, millers believe.

GRAVENHURST, Ont. —(ANS)— An intensive search for Hans Peter Krug, Nazi oberleutnant, who a second time escaped from a Canadian prison camp, continued today as authorities dragged the camp swimming pool on the theory that he may have drowned while attempting to flee.

Krug, the object of a nation-wide search in 1942 and whose subsequent capture led to the arrest and conviction of Max Stephen on a treason charge, was clad only in a pair of blue swimming trunks when he vanished "virtually into thin air."

an effort to stave off encirclement, have failed to halt the Russian advance, a Soviet communique said.

Soviet columns driving in from the south occupied the towns of Stish and Pilatovka while a spearhead advancing from the east captured the railroad station of Domnino, seven miles from Orel, the war bulletin declared.

Heavy German losses also were reported in the area south of Orel where the Nazis counterattacked vainly at a cost of about 1,500 men, the war bulletin said.

In addition to the successes achieved at Orel, the Russians reported a notable victory in the Donets basin, where they said the Nazis had been compelled by serious losses to halt their attacks southwest of Voroshilovgrad after five days of furious fighting.

Considerable aerial activity was reported all along the front yesterday, resulting, the Russians said, in destruction of 180 enemy planes.

Other units of the German army, however, still were trying to advance at Belgorod at the southern end of the Kursk salient 165 miles below Orel.

RECORD'S GOOD

Only 877 Convicted of Draft Evasion In Present War.

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said today that only 877 men have been convicted for evading the draft law during World war II.

During the first year of World war I about 10,000 men were prosecuted for failing to register for army duty, Hoover disclosed. Pitched battles and open violence resulting in the death of approximately 20 persons marked conscription in 1917.

The FBI was "on the alert" when registrations began on Oct. 16, 1940, Hoover said, but the 17,000,000 men who signed up did so with "a spirit of cheerfulness and willingness."

County's Surprise Raid Alert Called Success by OCD

had written to state headquarters in Columbus, urging that the next test be staged earlier in the day to give OCD officials a better picture of the civilian defense units' mobilization efficiency.

Police Capt. Jess Schwab, city OCD commander, said last night's test was "very satisfactory" with most of the air raid wardens, fire watchers, auxiliary police and firemen, and messengers reporting promptly after the first siren blast was heard.

The first message from Sandusky reached OCD headquarters here at 6:48 p. m. Workers in the control center at the city building were informed then and reported for duty by the time the first sirens were heard.

It wasn't until 7:41 p. m. that the wailing of the sirens indicated that the "enemy" planes were overhead and that traffic should halt.

The third audible signal came at 7:50 p. m., informing the city that the "enemy" raiders had passed. The all-clear followed in 10 minutes.

OCD heads reported that wardens had trouble again last night keeping cars and pedestrians off the streets during the nine-minute period when the raiding planes were supposed to have been over the city. The failure to comply with the ruling was believed due to misunderstanding of the siren warnings.

Commander Schwab pointed out that although a few wardens may have been in the downtown area before the sirens sounded, they had no "tip-off" on the test. None of the OCD officials here knew anything about the surprise alarm until they received the call from Sandusky at 6:48 p. m., and then only the control workers were informed of the approaching test, Commander Schwab said.

"Some of the wardens have been rehearsing down town and a few could have been on the streets before the test started, but they had not been told the alarm was due," the explained.

The test involved all of Richland county and six and a half other counties in the northern part of the state. Among them were Ashland, Crawford, Seneca, Sandusky, Erie, Huron and the eastern half of Ottawa county.

NEW DETROIT RIOTS FEARED

Mayor Calls Committee to Track Down Rumors.

DETROIT —(U.P.)— Gov. Harry F. Kelly was to meet with his special four-man fact-finding committee here today as authorities moved to track down persistent rumors that a recurrence of last June's bloody race rioting is in the making.

Fears of a recurrence in rioting were based largely on outbreak of a large number of minor incidents involving whites and Negroes. Most of the reports have involved attacks against white men on the street by Negroes believed to have been incited by rioting in Harlem Sunday or Monday.

CHAPTER XVIII

"A defense plant? Toby? I don't believe it! He could no more do that than you could be a chambermaid." She looked out the window and said, "Toby is very dear. He's European . . . He's like my old friends I left over there . . ."

"Where are they now? Your old friends, I mean."

Clare shrugged. "Dead or imbued with militarism or in some small American town and miserable. Oh, but we'll go back again. When this beastly war is over we're going back again."

"Then you are not glad to be home."

Clare drew up her shoulders. "We were driven out of France like refugees and packed on a ship. Steerage couldn't have been more worse. I thought it might be fun to come home for a while. But when I came and saw how different it is, how different everyone is . . . The only person who is the same is Toby. She smiled. "This is rather a dormitory-like chat, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is rather," Meegan said quietly. She arose and went to the dresser and picked up her hair brush. "I hate to be rude and go but I have a job I have to be going to shortly. I take ten children to the beach every morning and afternoon. That's one of the things I've done for myself."

Clare tilted her head and laughed. "How appalling."

"You and Fayne never . . . never had a child, Clare."

She seemed to sit very still. "No. I can't have a child. It's too bad. Fayne would adore it. We've thought of adopting one."

Meegan looked through the mirror. She said pleasantly. "Then that's the only thing you haven't done for yourself you should do."

"Perhaps. I've wondered if it's worth the risk." She nodded, her eyes narrowing again when she said slowly, "Yes, that is the only thing I haven't done for myself. I've done everything else, haven't I? What time is your appointment? May I drop you off?"

"I can't leave until Toby brings the car home. Shall we go downstairs on the porch and wait for him?"

They were on the porch when Toby came, bringing his mother with him. Meegan stood still, seeing her mother go to Clare with outstretched hands and her happiest smile and kiss her. Clare was charming, making Elinor McLean feel that she was the devoted object of her visit and that she was delighted to see her again. Their words flowed warmly while Toby stood apart looking at Clare with a curious expression, a mixture of admiration and tenderness.

But when Clare turned to him, her look was one of challenging possessiveness and superiority. Clare had probably looked at many men like that and many men had loved her. Fayne loved her . . . Yet there was nothing about Clare that suggested, as it invariably did with women, her married state. Women loved wear a look of having been loved. Clare did not have that look. She looked as if she belonged to no one except herself and accounted to no one except herself. She had always looked like that, as if no barriers existed for her and nothing was impossible to her. Was it a philosophy, Meegan wondered?

"It's good to see you back," Toby said.

"I'm very glad to be back, Toby."

"How are you feeling?"

"Splendid."

Elinor McLean said, "You're not going, Clare? Of course you are not going, dear. You're coming in to have tea with Toby and me."

When Meegan took the keys from Toby, she thought, the silver tea service hasn't tarnished since Erica's visit . . . A few minutes later she turned back to look at them. Clare and Toby were walking together and Toby's shoulder was drooping more than usual. Elinor McLean walked a little before them, her innocent face smiling in anticipation of tea with her beloved son and the woman who always came back . . .

A midnight call from Paul in Texas precipitated an unexpected trip to Washington for Meegan. Granted a short leave in order to see his attorney there about an estate recently left him (someone, it seemed to Meegan, was always dying and leaving his an estate) he would not have time to visit the island and had suggested that she meet him in Washington for luncheon. Since his parents were spending the summer on their farm in Virginia, he would go to see them directly he left Meegan.

She realized how isolated she had been and how long it had been since she had left the island when she found herself dressing for the occasion with particular care and anticipating the luncheon. She chose a sheer navy frock with a frilly white jabot and an absurd little navy straw hat that sat back from the high waves of her hair. She left the island in good spirits but her thoughts began to play as a record with a broken needle . . . and played again and again.

Away from the island, seeing strange faces on the crowded day coach, she wondered if her imagination had been playing her false. Was it not true that the dread she had felt at Clare's return and her feelings of evil and impending disaster were things of her mind? The only concrete happenings were the tale of Jimmy, the caddie, and the obvious fact that Clare and Toby were involved in an emotional struggle that had reached a climax the night before Clare had gone away. It was only a thing of her mind also that Clare had returned, not looking as if she had been a guest at a wedding but rather as if she had been sleeping and resting in a quiet place. Perhaps, Meegan thought, her fears were myths emerging from her own depraved mind. Perhaps they came from jealousy and envy of the woman who had married Fayne. Perhaps her shrinking from Clare was the shrinking of the little-minded from those who have more than they, from those who moved untouched and untroubled and superior in a generous world. The train shuddered and stopped.

There was, as always, so festive an air about the lobby of that particular Washington hotel she was glad that Paul was late. When she saw a young woman and young man meet and embrace with the warmth of their voices, she realized how long it had been since she had met with anyone with a frankly expressed joy. She thought, I have never really been in love with anyone except Fayne and that is all in my mind and imagination, too. Why can't I meet someone and fall in love with him as other girls do and say it and show it and live it?

When she saw Paul, thinner than he had been, his thick, stubborn sandy hair close-cropped, his grin amiable, she was ashamed that she could not love him, that her emotions interfered with her common sense. Paul would be kind to her for the rest of her life and he could so provide for her mother that Elinor McLean would never have to worry about her next permanent wave or the failure of her cooking.

"I'm sorry I'm late," he said.

Characteristically Paul, Meegan thought with a smile. He would never say that he was happy to see her or that she looked nice . . .

"It's all right, really. I've had fun looking at the people."

He grimmed because to Paul it was incredible that anyone could have fun just by looking at strange people.

At the table she asked about his air training and received only meagre answers. With him one always had to prod to keep the conversations going and then his responses were so general they were never satisfactory. The schedule was plenty tough, he said, the fellows at the school were swell, the food wasn't bad and the life was strictly Spartan. How was everything on the island? Meegan said all right, and it was an answer that seemed to satisfy him.

Turning the cocktail glass round and round in his hand he said, "A lot of people are getting married now. The war and . . ."

"A lot of people are getting married who shouldn't."

"Yes, maybe you're right but it may be now or never."

She looked up and smiled. "Are you, by any chance, proposing to me, Paul?"

"Well, I'd sort of like to know you were being taken care of..."

"You're sweet to think that and there are times when I want terribly to be taken care of. Sometimes the most I want is for someone to be kind to me and think and feel for me. But that's like wanting to sleep your life away. It isn't really living. I'm sure of that. I'm sorry, but I can't marry you because I—I like you too much and love you too little."

"That's okay. When you're older, you'll feel different."

"You think I'm suffering from youthful romanticism?"

He grinned. "Something like that. Girls have funny ideas. Some do, at least. The others just want to get married."

She laughed. "As if a mere ceremony made the joining of two people a perfect thing. But I am glad to see you and I . . ." her eyes swept over the room filled with the voices of attractive people, "I'm glad to be here. I like the feeling of being anonymous . . . just one other person having luncheon in Washington today. It stimulated me. You see, I am a girl with funny ideas."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 4, 1943.

The idea seems to be quite general that people could live comfortably on 125 per cent of their income.

It is now being predicted that the painted-on stocking "is here to stay"—but, apparently, not through a hard rain.

Maternity Care for Soldiers' Wives

FEW ACTS by Ohio officials have aroused such widespread resentment and condemnation as the refusal by State Health Director R. H. Markwith to co-operate with federal efforts to assure proper maternity care for wives of servicemen.

Thirty-nine other states have come to an agreement with the children's bureau of the federal labor department in the matter of giving financial aid to child-bearing wives of men in service, but Ohio's health director has turned down the proposal, saying that he is acting with the approval of Governor Bricker.

The health director also makes it clear that in refusing to take funds voted by congress, he is acting on the recommendation of the Ohio State Medical association, which professes to see this as a move toward socialized medicine.

If there is fear of such an eventuality it is actions such as this that will hurry the matter along, as there can be no doubt that public sentiment favors the best of maternal care for the wives of service men, regardless of their financial status, and without need for worry over hospital and doctor bills.

Those who know of the present high costs of "having a baby" must realize that the $50 a month payment to service men, plus ordinary allowance to his wife, cannot be expected to cover the bill. It is in recognition of this fact that state co-operation with the federal plan for making a special allowance has been invited and the attitude of Governor Bricker, the state health director and the doctors who oppose the proposal appears indefensible.

Not all doctors are opposed, as, for instance, Dr. Richard A. Bolt, director of the Cleveland Child Health association, who wrote Dr. Markwith:

"Regardless of its political implications, I feel personally that it was a grave mistake for you to turn down the opportunity of securing federal funds for maternal and infant care for the wives and infants of servicemen.

"Ohio is placed in a very unfavorable position. In times like this, the care of mothers and children of men in the armed services is paramount, and becomes a matter of national concern."

With Governor Bricker's "views" admittedly subject to change to fit a party platform, it would seem even more important that they now be revised to a point of better accord with public sentiment in the matter of assuring the best of pre-natal, obstetrical and post-natal care for wives and babies of men who are in military service.

Should Voting Age Be Reduced?

MOST of the current discussion about the advisability of reducing legal voting age from 21 to 18 is based on the idea that "if young men are old enough to fight they are old enough to vote"—which is logical enough in itself but which doesn't seem to cover the main point of whether or not any considerable percentage of young men and women in the age range of 18 to 21 CARE TO VOTE.

It was only after years of struggle by an aggressive and determined minority that men "granted" women the privilege of voting, and it is still open to question whether a majority of women are sufficiently interested in the affairs of government to exercise the "right of franchise."

An age minimum of 21 and American citizenship, either by birth or naturalization, are the only qualifications required for voting in practically all states. A few southern states have been able to continue a poll tax requirement or an educational test as bars to voting, but these are frowned upon by the federal government—which, in theory at least, considers no citizen above the age of 21 as too dumb or too poverty-stricken to share equally in choosing public officials and determining governmental policies.

Present-day young men and women, at least a majority of whom have a high school education, are quite unlikely to be any better qualified to vote intelligently at the age of 21 than they are at 18. If they WANT TO VOTE there is no really good reason why they shouldn't be accorded that privilege.

Property Owners Also Offenders

BECAUSE the offense of permitting a "house or building" to be used for commercialized immorality is sometimes lost sight of by property owners, it seems advisable to make mention of this law in association with the spread of houses of prostitution into residential sections of the city.

Mansfield's ordinance on this subject reads: "It shall be unlawful for any person owning or exercising control over any house or building to knowingly lease the same for the purpose of keeping therein a house of prostitution or assignation, or knowingly permit the same to be used for such purposes, and for every 24 hours that such person or persons shall continue to be guilty of either of the above offenses after conviction, such person or persons shall be deemed guilty of an additional offense for each day so continuing."

The prescribed penalty is a fine of from $1 to $50, which applies also to any person who visits a disorderly house or house of ill-fame, for immoral purposes.

However much it may have been ignored, this law seems to offer a means of gaining relief from the nuisance of spreading houses of prostitution into residence sections of the city.

Everybody's Reading 'One World'

POPULARITY of Wendell Willkie's travel book, "One World," continues to be incredible. There is no use telling how many copies have been sold, because the actual number always jumps before the estimate can get into print. It seems to be the biggest success on record for that kind of book—which is a novel example of travelogue, exploration, aviation, friendliness, showmanship, politics, statesmanship, geography and personal appeal, such as probably never occurred before.

It isn't merely a book that people read and talk about. Screen versions are now to be produced in nine languages. And all this literary to-do is the achievement of a supposedly practical man of affairs, who never wrote anything before except some campaign speeches.

HOOKED BUT NOT YET LANDED

Nazi Defense of 'Inner Fortress' Is Bolstered By Badoglio's Delay

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

FAST MOVING CRISES on all fronts combine to give the impression of a Europe which is rushing headlong for the show-down—not that the end necessarily is imminent but that the final phase of Armageddon is close at hand.

Italian Marshal Badoglio's delay in dealing with the Allied demand for surrender is reported to have given Hitler the opportunity to establish a line of perhaps a quarter million German troops right across northern Italy as a buttress against an Allied drive from the south. The Nazis also are said to have occupied the great port of the Trieste at the head of the Adriatic, thus closing one important gateway to the Balkans.

It isn't clear whether Badoglio connived at this, or whether he was forced into it unwillingly by threats of reprisals against the Italian population by the Nazi war lord. However, that's muddy water over the dam.

Of more immediate concern is the fact that the Allies have a large problem on their hands, assuming that the reports of German troop movements are accurate.

The fuehrer's move is, of course, purely defensive. He expects the United Nations to overrun the lower two-thirds of the Italian peninsula.

However, that no longer is useful to him and he probably doesn't intend to offer much opposition until the enemy reaches his first line of defense, which Madrid reports may be anchored at the naval base of La Spezia on the west coast and run eastward to the Adriatic. That would be about 200 miles north of Rome.

Hitler's main line will be a hundred miles farther north, taking advantage of the strategic fortifications along the River Po. Here he will dispute the Allied rights of way to France, Germany or the Balkans.

If you will glance at your maps you will see what a magnificent defensive line the Po affords. We may expect fierce fighting here, unless there's a great change in the picture as it appears now.

THE PURPOSE of the Nazi chief's move is to stand the Allies off while he makes final preparations to defend his so-called inner fortress into which he will retire if the pressure continues as at present. This is the circle within which he proposes to make his last-ditch stand to safeguard the reich and such of the occupied territories as he thinks he can hang onto.

With this concentration of power, and a vast shortening of his now interminable communications, he will battle to force a stalemate.

The Axis Highest's plan is a scheme of desperation. This is emphasized as the Anglo-American forces race for the coup de grace in Sicily, as the amazing Russians continue their slaughter of Nazis in the fierce Orel offensive, and as the Allied bombers deal crushing blows to great German cities while fear spreads throughout the reich.

British Foreign Secretary Eden yesterday handed Hitler a grim reminder of the Nazi position by quoting the fuehrer's own words of January 30, 1939.

"As regards national socialist Germany, she is well aware of the fate that will befall her if ever an international force, whatever its motives, succeeds in overwhelming Fascist Italy."

BUT IN GERMANY the fate of Italy has been pushed into the background by the terrors of the round-the-clock bombing to which the reich is being subjected. Daily it becomes more apparent that this rain of death and destruction is playing a major role—perhaps the major role—in forcing Hitler to his knees. We have now reached the point of speculation as to how long he can endure the ordeal without collapse.

The German newspapers have abandoned their braggadocio. They are admitting in terms of fear that the bombing surpasses anything which imagination hitherto has conjured up.

Trains loaded with dead and wounded and with terrified refugees are fleeing cities like Hamburg whose shattered remains continue under the scourge.

At long last the Berlin press is saying that while the fatherland is invincible on the war fronts, there's a question whether the German people are invincible.

Dave Boone Says:

I DON'T SEE why there should be so much of a howl over a former ballet dancer being named to a job in the office of economic welfare. That is provided he's a good one. Trouble with most of our economic welfare planners is that they're so heavy on their feet and on ours.

* * *

Our economic planners befuddle us without any entertainment. We haven't any idea what they're doing. A good interpretive dance might clear it all up for us. There's no getting away from the fact that most of the economic experts lack rhythm and music. And boy, do they need it!

* * *

I'll bet that right now one ballet dancer could interpret some of those new blueprints of our economic future better than a dozen of the non-dancing experts.

* * *

And I think the dancer has a good defense against his critics. He can prove he ain't any higher off the ground in his act than the experts are in their act. And they need more clothes.

Health And Diet

Fasting Does Little Harm.

—By DR. CLENDENING

Food fads have afflicted the world from the time when man began to move around on the banks of the Nile. We have had in this century the fad of Graham bread, the Salisbury diet (from which Salisbury steak gets its name and which stated that meat was the only good food for man), down to the Hay diet, which states that all illness is due to eating starches and proteins together.

Never, during all this time, has the fad of fasting lost its devotees. I do not know how he stands on the subject now, but long ago when he was younger and full of eternal juices, Upton Sinclair passionately advocated periods of fasting, which he called "the foe of sickness."

Many Might Benefit.

Of course, I am not fundamentally against fasting in the proper place. I could here and now give the National Nutrition board the names and addresses of a number of people for whom, in my sober, professional opinion, fasting would do a great deal of good.

The common sense of this situation was stated by a layman, Professor Harry Thurston Peck, the editor of the Bookman. He reviewed a book called "The No-Breakfast Cure." This book was embellished by photographs of the devotees of the no-breakfast cure. Dr. Peck, on looking these over, said that he could pick out many people who certainly would be benefited by no breakfast for a very long time, and others who should have a number of breakfasts in rapid succession.

Mr. Sinclair believed that the following diseases were benefited by fasting: indigestion, rheumatism, colds, tuberculosis, constipation, poor circulation, headache, anemia, liver trouble, blood poisoning, neurasthenia, sciatica, asthma, eczema and catarrh.

Most of these names are very vague and would mean very little to a physician, such as catarrh, rheumatism and liver trouble. The list certainly includes too much. It is certainly dangerous to tell a person with tuberculosis that he should starve.

Fasting does little harm because most people automatically stop it before it goes too far.

Farm Bloc Abandoned Food Czar Idea Soon as Chester Davis Quit

WASHINGTON—One amusing sidelight on congress was its sudden loss of interest in legislation broadening the powers of the war food administrator the minute Judge Marvin Jones, their ex-colleague, was named to the job.

Farm blocers in both houses were clamoring for action on legislation giving the food administrator supervisory authority over prices as well as the production and distribution of farm commodities. This was while Chester Davis, secretly in league with farm bloc efforts to rig price ceilings at inflationary levels, still held the job.

Representative Hampton P. Fulmer of South Carolina, chairman of the agriculture committee, had the stage all set for the bill enlarging Davis' powers. He even announced, after unsuccessful efforts to get White House approval, that he was going before the rules committee and demand a "rule" to bring his measure to the house floor.

Events at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue, however, caused Fulmer to drop his bill like a hot potato. The president abruptly fired Davis and replaced him with Jones.

Jones was Fulmer's predecessor as chairman of the agriculture committee, and everyone in congress knew he was a tough hombre. So the last thing the farm bloc wanted was for Jones, a stalwart supporter for the president's anti-inflation policies, to have the powers which had been tailor-made for Davis in the Fulmer bill.

Also, there may have been a personal motive in Fulmer's case. Friends say he never has quite forgiven Jones for holding on to the agriculture committee chairmanship for six months after his appointment to the court of claims in 1940.

Fulmer withdrew his request for a rules committee hearing and hied himself to Myrtle Beach, S. C., for a summer vacation a week before congress recessed. To Capitol newsmen, he ducked comment on his about-face but said frankly to colleagues: "What's the use of pressing for action on my bill now?"

War Liberty League.

OFFICIALS here are crediting Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of General Motors, with reviving the old Liberty League under another name. He has just sent a round-robin letter to a large number of businessmen — including some of his own automobile dealers — urging that they raise a fund of $1,300,000 to be spent for educating the American public on "the problems of industry."

Since this fund is for 1943 alone, and since $1,300,000 is no small amount to spend on propaganda in any year, administration leaders draw the natural deduction that it is chiefly another Liberty League war chest aimed at the New Deal.

Joining Sloan in this appeal are other one-time Liberty Leaguers and anti-Roosevelt men, including: J. Howard Pew, of Sun Oil, one of the GOP bosses of Pennsylvania; Colby Chester, chairman of General Foods, Ernest Weir, chairman of National Steel; A. W. Eames, president of the California Packing corporation, and James S. Adams, president of Standard Brands. They operate under the new name of "National Industrial Information Committee."

After attacking "the truly deplorable performance of government bueaucracy" and praising "the truly magnificent performance of American industry," Sloan, in his letter, proposes a propaganda campaign to educate the public on the problems of industry.

"We must not be too general," Sloan cautions. "We must not be too specific. But we must get across as effectively as we can our story . . . I do hope you will see fit to send me a subscription representing your company's proportionate share of our 1943 goal of $1,300,000."

Ambassadorial Suppression.

SPANISH Ambassador Juan Cardenas has now out-distanced Mussolini's former puppet Ambassador de Martino in trying to suppress American freedom of speech and press. Martino persuaded Herbert Hoover to court-martial Gen. Smedley Butler for telling how Mussolini ran over a child without turning back — though later the court-martial backfired and Hoover dropped it like a hot potato.

Franco's Ambassador Cardenas, however, has now distinguished himself by trying to suppress the movie "For Whom the Bell Tolls"; the book "Appeasement's Child," a scathing criticism of Franco by Lieut. Tom Hamilton; and also the speech of his Ambassadorial colleague from Mexico who implied that Franco is a traitor and a puppet.

The diplomatic corps is wondering whether Ambassador Cardenas will now demand suppression of Allan Chase's fighting book "Falange. The Axis Secret Army in the Americas." They think that this time he won't have the nerve to do it.

Merry-Go-Round.

OUT in Leo Crowley's home town, his neighbor Bill Evjue, editor of the Madison, Wis., Capitol Times is saying "Leo Crowley has led a charmed life in politics . . . but his immunity to public criticism is at an end.' Neighbor Evjue has raised some questions which have puzzled a lot of people—concerning Crowley's $75,000 salary from Standard Gas and Electric while holding down three important jobs for Uncle Sam . . . Wonder if the Wright Aeronautical advertisement trying to refute Truman committee charges of faulty engines will be deducted from income taxes. If so, the government will virtually pay for the ads . . . Henry Ickes, cousin of the secretary of interior, is waging a relentless campaign to educate the American public on the pronunciation of this valiant name. In case you didn't know it, it is ICKes not Ick-EES . . . How worried Pan American Airways is over prospects of losing its one-time monopoly of all foreign U. S. airlines is indicated by the fact that it secretly offered to give 49 per cent of its stock to the U. S. governmen. Then, with the other 51 per cent, PanAm would control all U. S.-foreign airlines . . . Henry Wallace privately intimates to friends that he has now found the Fifth Freedom: "Freedom from Responsibility without Authority."

Meet Some of Ernie's Shipmates Who Helped Make the Wheels Go 'Round.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—Fewer than a third of the sailors on our ship were regular navy. And most of that third hadn't been in the navy many years. Most of our crew were young peace-time landlubbers who became sailors only because of the war and who were longing to get back to civil life.

These "amateurs" make a crew somewhat less efficient than you would have found before the war. They just haven't had time to become thoroughly adept. But their officers say they are all terribly willing.

Here are a few little sketches of some of the men who made the wheels go 'round on the ship I was on.

JOE RAYMER. He's an electrician's mate first class. His home is in Columbus, O. He is married, and has a daughter 4 years old. Joe was in the navy from 1924 to '28, so he knows his way around ships.

He is medium height, a pleasant fellow with a little silver in his hair and a cigar in his mouth. I don't know why, but sailors smoking cigars have always seemed incongruous to me.

Before the war Joe was a traveling salesman, and that's what he intends to go back to. He worked for the Pillsbury flour people—had central southern Ohio. He was a hot shot and no fooling. The year before he came back to the navy he sold more pancake flour than anybody else in America, and won himself a $500 bonus.

WARREN REAM. His home is at Paradise, Cal., and he has worked for several years in the advertising departments of big Los Angeles stores—Bullocks, Barker Bros., Robinsons. He arrived over here just in time to get aboard ship for the invasion. Actually he thinks he wasn't supposed to be aboard ship at all, but he was glad he didn't miss it.

Ream is a storekeeper third class, but that doesn't necessarily means he keeps store. In fact he does a little bit of everything from sweeping up to passing shells.

His life is great contrast with what it used to be. Ream is the kind of fellow you would think would be tortured by the rough life of the navy. But we were standing at the rail one day and he said:

"I wonder what's happened to the old navy we used to read about. I remember hearing of skippers who could cuss for 45 minutes without repeating themselves. But from what I've seen, skippers today can't cuss any better than I can. I'm disappointed.

HARVEY HEREDEEN. He is now a warrant officer, which means he eats in the wardroom and is called Mister. But a man's a man by any other name, and Mister Heredeen looks exactly like what he has always been—a regular old-time naval chief petty officer. He got orders to return to the States just before we sailed, but you wouldn't get an old-timer to miss a show like this. He got permission to postpone the homeward trip until after we had made the invasion.

Mister Heredeen retired from the navy in 1935 after 17 years of it, twelve of them in submarines. He had met a Memphis school teacher so he got married and settled down in a job at the Linde Air Products company, making oxygen. He came back two and a half years ago. He is 45 now.

Before long he will be back in America instructing at submarine school. His nickname is "Spike" and his home is in Memphis. Back home he was a deacon in the London Avenue Christian church. He says not to make any wisecracks about his cussing and tobacco-chewing when I write him up. Okay, Deacon.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Pig-a-Wee's Capers

PIG-A-WEE" is the children's name for the runt, now two weeks old. From his Duroc mother he has red hair and from somewhere else a spattering of black freckles. He was a thin mite of a pig at first, whimpering lonesomely and nuzzling blindly with a firm pink snout at anything warm that came near him.

We fed him warm milk from a medicine dropper, a time or two, and when he did not die, I brought home a half dozen rubber nipples. But Pig-a-wee drew a firm line. He did not yearn for rubber, synthetic or otherwise. Positively, no. He mouthed the proffered bottle in disgust and nuzzled at my arm.

I became disgusted, too. I pushed his nosey little snout down into the pan of warm milk until he shook milk out of his floppy ears and gasped 'enough.'

From then on, we understood each other. At three days old a curl was in his tail and he lapped up his milk without being coaxed. By day he lived in a big box in the sunny yard and at night he had a bushel basket with straw in the bottom, in the back porch. During the first week he begged for milk in the night and the tenderhearted member of our family got up and warmed him some, scratched his back and cuddled him down again. But after a few days he learned to bury himself in straw and sleep until morning.

At about this time my wife began to hint that 'pig-in-the-parlor' went out of date long ago. For the winsome porker soon learned to catapult himself out of his basket at sight of me and trailed me everywhere, indoors or out. For that matter he began to attach himself to any moving pair of feet and weave in and out between them. It made treacherous going.

Today, while I happened to be away, the boys—at their mother's request—contrived a 'house and lot' for Pig-a-wee with all modern conveniences. It is made of two trestles such as carpenters use connected by the two sides of an eight-foot fruit tree box. A rill from the spring trickles through at one end. At the other a piece of tar paper transformed the wooden 'horse' into a tent with a floor of straw where piggy can be dry and warm, even on a chilly evening. There is green grass growing and a sunny spot for a lazy pig to stretch himself.

"Now see that you leave him there," the children warned me, "until he is six or eight weeks old and can join the rest of the litter in the fattening pen."

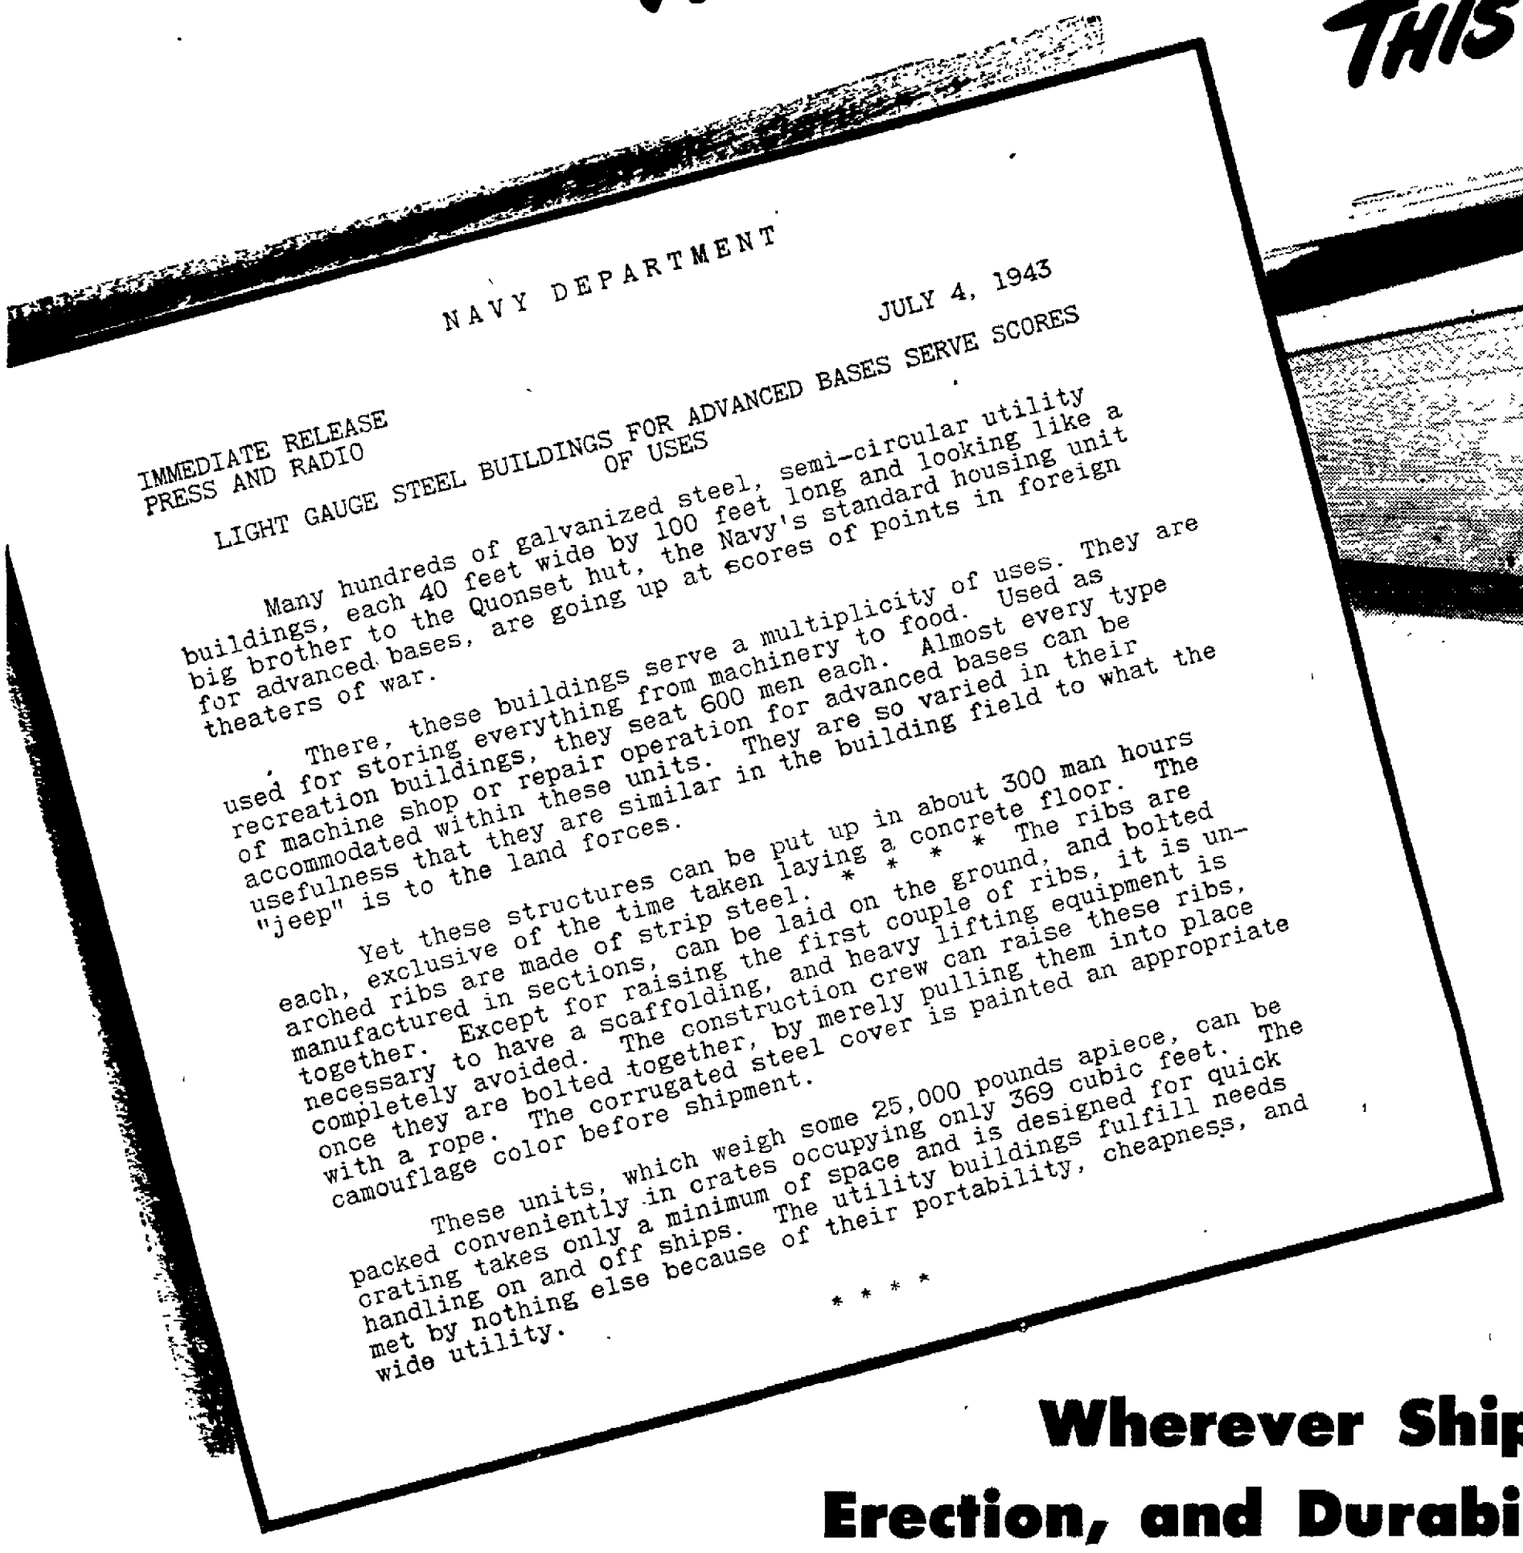
There's a NEW "JEEP" in the military field!

THIS ALL-PURPOSE BUILDING OF STRIP STEEL



NAVY DEPARTMENT

JULY 4, 1943

IMMEDIATE RELEASE
PRESS AND RADIO

LIGHT GAUGE STEEL BUILDINGS FOR ADVANCED BASES SERVE SCORES OF USES

Many hundreds of galvanized steel, semi-circular utility buildings, each 40 feet wide by 100 feet long and looking like a big brother to the Quonset hut, the Navy's standard housing unit for advanced bases, are going up at scores of points in foreign theaters of war.

There, these buildings serve a multiplicity of uses. They are used for storing everything from machinery to food. Used as recreation buildings, they seat 600 men each. Almost every type of machine shop or repair operation for advanced bases can be accommodated within these units. They are so varied in their usefulness that they are similar in the building field to what the "jeep" is to the land forces.

Yet these structures can be put up in about 300 man hours each, exclusive of the time taken laying a concrete floor. The arched ribs are made of strip steel. * * * * The ribs are manufactured in sections, can be laid on the ground, and bolted together. Except for raising the first couple of ribs, it is unnecessary to have a scaffolding, and heavy lifting equipment is completely avoided. The construction crew can raise these ribs, once they are bolted together, by merely pulling them into place with a rope. The corrugated steel cover is painted an appropriate camouflage color before shipment.

These units, which weigh some 25,000 pounds apiece, can be packed conveniently in crates occupying only 369 cubic feet. The crating takes only a minimum of space and is designed for quick handling on and off ships. The utility buildings fulfill needs met by nothing else because of their portability, cheapness, and wide utility.

* * * *

Even before America entered the war, Stran-Steel was applying the full measure of its research facilities, design experience and fabricating knowledge to the development of better military buildings. Today the inherent strength and light weight of strip steel framing have been utilized to best advantage, effecting economies both in the frame itself and in the collateral materials required. Many thousand cubic feet of shipping space—many thousand tons of shipping weight—have been released for other war equipment through these savings.

As the largest supplier of huts and military buildings for naval bases, Stran-Steel has acquired irreplaceable experience in design, coordination and supply. This experience is at the service of the armed forces.

Prepare Your Children for School Days

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

If you have not already begun to prepare your young child for his first day at school, begin at once. It was fortunate if you took advantage of the summer-round-up program of the P.T.A. a few months ago, in which case your child's eyes, ears, throat, and teeth were examined and he was given a general physical examination. Whatever remedial treatment was found to be needed you were advised to have done by your family doctor or dentist or community clinic. You also were advised to have the child vaccinated against smallpox and immunized from diphtheria. I trust all these things have been done.

If they have not, let me urge you to have your family doctor and dentist check on your child at once. Then follow their advice. Do it as early as possible. Any remedial work, such as removal of adenoids and bad tonsils, done just before school opens puts the child at a disadvantage; and for him to enter school with any remedial physical defect not cared for is to handicap him at school tremendously. School experience, especially for the first few months, often is a trying experience for the young child under the most favorable conditions.

Obviously, wartime renders vaccination against small pox and inoculation against diphtheria more imperative than ever, since doctors are so scarce and hospitals so crowded. As never before, we want to keep our children well.

Nor should the physical welfare of the child over six or seven be neglected. Summer is the time to have him checked by doctor and dentist. I wish those teen-age youths who are earning money this summer would spend part of their earnings, if necessary, on the doctor and dentist; at least on an early examination. Even the girl or youth who is thinking first of being personally attractive, should put dental work before better clothes.

Some children on entering school have a hard time because they are unable to get along well with other children. During the months ahead, be sure your child, especially of five or six, has ample opportunity to play freely with other children of his age. If he is a lonely, timid child, you still have a few months to do a great deal to help him, though this may require considerable time, effort and sacrifice on your part.

Please do not try to get your child into school before the required age, else he may be handicapped the rest of his school life.

If his first experience at school is to be in the first grade, do not attempt to teach him from books or burden him with formal school work now. However, it might be to his advantage to be able to recognize some of the letters of the alphabet and to count objects to 10 or 15. I hope you have been reading to your child for several years. When the child has been read to over many days, weeks and months, he learns to listen attentively; he learns to concentrate on what is being read or told which is essential for success at school.
